DRY STAND BY HOOVER DENIED

Today

Do Nothing Policy.
Poor Harding.
Death at a Distance.
To Detect Falsehood.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

EVERY NEWSPAPER congressman, clergyman and at least 50,000,000 others have discussed the Wickersham prohibition report. The discussion will continue, with minority members telling what they think. The fact is that the commission recommends, by a majority vote, to do nothing except to spend more money on enforcement which, according to the commission's unanimous opinion does not enforce.

The President approves the commission's condemnation of repeal or modification. Therefore there will be no change in the law or the national policy until March 4, 1933, in any case. And the public mind and the presidential mind should turn to other things. This nation was not established, and presidents are not elected, to spend an eternity discussing whisky and beer.

THE PUBLIC will applaud President Hoover's determination to officiate at the Harding memorial celebration. Harding was a president of the United States, and President Hoover, setting aside any personal opinion, acts well in accepting the Harding committee's invitation.

ALAS, POOR Harding. This celebration and Mr. Hoover's acceptance remind you of a western funeral, at which no one rose to say a good word for the deceased until after 10 minutes' waiting one tall man got up and was asked

"Are you a friend of the deceased?"

He replied:

"Not exactly, for I never heard of him. But I'm a friend of any man that has as few friends as he seems to have here."

DISTANCE LENDS enchantment, perhaps. It surely creates indifference. Under the heading, "Millions Dead of Famine," you read six lines of Associated Press copy to the effect that in China's Shensi province alone, 2,000,000 have died of hunger and 400,000 have been sold into slavery, within a short time. "Are we our brothers' keepers?" Not if the brothers live 7,000 miles away.

CHICAGO'S POLICE have a "lie meter," that, attached to the arm of a suspect under cross-examination, tells when he is lying. It works, because the human heart, not taught to lie, changes its beat when the anxious process of lying begins. In India, barefooted natives giving testimony lie with straight faces. But they twitch their big toes, and lawyers watch their feet. A well known capitalist twitched his thumb when bluffing at poker, and lost large sums, until he began holding his cards with four fingers, the thumb kept hidden.

THE RED CROSS in Arkansas has begun feeding children that reach the public schools too hungry to study. And Arkansas is not the only state with hungry children. In Ohio a rural school principal wrote asking how she could keep her 135 school children from starving. Inspection of lunch boxes revealed in some cases a cold potato, in others a hard biscuit, with a small piece of salt pork.

HOW SOON will a government that has decided to feed children's minds with books and teachers realize that a starved body cannot learn, and add food for the body to provide food for the brain. If the government wants to help the farmers, afflicted with overproduction of food, why not let the farms feed the children. That would do more to help farmers than storing 90,000,000 bushels of government wheat in grain elevators.

THIS IS written in a fertile country. F. A. Schense, farmer, has four more children than he had last week. His wife, with two children on each arm, looks happy, but tired. Her two boys and two girls were born between 9 and 9:25 in the evening. They weigh 17 pounds and are healthy. This offsets four young women that keep their maiden names in marriage, and decide that having children is bad for the figure.

RUSSIA'S NEWSPAPERS make fun of our congressional committee, on the activities of "Reds" or Communists, and say with considerable truth, that the report of a great Communist menace in America "reflects capitalist fear." Next to a man with a basket of eggs on his head, the most nervous human is one with a few millions in the bank. He thinks everybody wants to get them, and he is right. But fear makes things worse. And, if our distinguished best minds don't find some way of supplying employment, or at least food, in the world's richest country, they will have other worries that will make them forget about Russia.

MUSSOLINI CONTINUES to succeed. His air squadron flies the Atlantic to Brazil in military formation, something never done before. Thus he takes the edge from the Prince of Wales' salesmanship visit to South America. And now Italy reports a death rate reduced and a birth rate increased. Births are more than 25 per 1,000, deaths in 1930 dropped from 16.1 to 13.7 per 1,000. In Italy last year 1,085,163 babies were born. Plenty of ability in those little heads.

Italy's birth rate contradicts the assertion that Mussolini is

3 GUNMEN DEFIED BY WOMAN

Storekeeper's Wife Saves $500, Runs With Money, Screaming; Suspect Held

Mrs. Fanny Wise, 46, foiled three gunmen when, with $500 clutched tightly in her hand, she ran screaming from her husband's confectionery store, 2941 Penn avenue, as the robbers fled empty-handed today.

Police arrested Matthew Kozera, 21, of 3305 Fleetwood street, as he was running from the scene, they reported, and lodged him in Penn Avenue Station. He is said to have given the names of two other men whom the police are seeking.

ALONE IN STORE

Mrs. Wise was alone in the store, taking the place of her husband, Paul, ill in bed on the second floor.

She was sorting $500 in bills, part of $2,100 which her son, Joseph, 24, had obtained at the Franklin Savings and Trust Company—with which to cash pay checks of Pennsylvania Railroad employes. The balance of the $2,100 had been secreted.

The gunmen approached her with pistols drawn. They commanded:

"Give us the money or we'll shoot!"

She replied:

"Nothing doing—go ahead and shoot."

RUNS, SCREAMS

With two of the robbers in pursuit, she ran screaming from the store through a kitchen in the rear, where her son and four railroaders, one of them F. F. Smith, of Greensburg, were talking. The

JURY STILL OUT IN BOW CASE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Prolonged deliberations were forecast today as the jury of seven men and five women returned to the task of deciding the fate of Daisy De Voe, former secretary and companion of Clara Bow, who is being tried on grand theft charges.

After four and a half hours of deliberation, the jurors were ordered locked up for the night last night by Judge William C. Doran.

Reports about the court room when the jury was ordered locked up were that it then stood 10 to 2 in favor of conviction.

Miss De Voe is charged with having appropriated approximately $16,000 of the motion picture "It" girl's funds while acting as her secretary and companion.

Neither Clara Bow nor Rex Bell, her movie cowboy friend, were in court when the case was finally placed in the jury's hands.

HOLD UP TRAIN, SHOOT MAN

BELLEFONTAINE, O., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Working with quiet but grim precision, six train bandits routed sleeping Florida-bound passengers from their berths as a Big Four train neared here early today, shot a man and escaped with cash and jewelry valued at $3,000.

The gunmen, all masked and armed, invaded the Pullman next to the last of the No. 9 train en route from Detroit to Cincinnati.

A passenger who shouted in alarm was shot and critically wounded, and the remaining six passengers were taken into the

Slayer, Victim of Hoax, Granted Reprieve

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Gov. Conley today granted a reprieve to Emory Stephens, sentenced to be hanged tomorrow night at the state penitentiary, until February 20.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Emory Stephens, convicted Logan County slayer, stood in the grim shadows of the hangman's noose again today.

Removed from the death house yesterday by an incorrect report that Gov. Conley commuted his death sentence to life imprisonment, Stephens was returned there last night when the report was retracted. He nearly collapsed as he was led back into the house.

Stephens is scheduled to pay his debt to society tomorrow night with William Claude Adams, Mingo County slayer.

EX-TROOPER JAILED OVER U. S. TAX

McLaughlin, Pleading Guilty, Given 3 Months; Dodged Paying Levy on $133,000

Capt. Thomas J. McLaughlin, former commander of Troop A, State Police, at Greensburg, pleaded guilty in Federal Court today to charges of failure to file an income tax report and attempting to evade payment of income tax on $133,689.

Capt. McLaughlin

Judge R. M. Gibson immediately sentenced him to serve three months in the Westmoreland County jail and pay a fine of $1,000 and costs.

The maximum sentence to which Judge Gibson could have pronounced on the nine counts in the indictment is 45 years in jail and a fine of $90,000.

Two character witnesses who appeared for him were Harry M. Yont, mayor of Greensburg, and G. A. McDowell, controller of Westmoreland County.

McLaughlin offered no explanation in court as to the source of his income. He has said that his financial transactions were "my own business."

McLaughlin's counsel, Congressman Harry A. Estep, first offered a plea of no defense, but United States Attorney Graham refused to accept it.

The former state trooper was accused of attempting to evade payment of a tax on income of $133,689, from the years 1924 to 1929, inclusive.

Last August, after investigation of his income was begun, he appeared before the income tax collector and paid a tax of $6,825 and penalty and interest of $3,900.

McLaughlin's salary as a state officer was $3,600.

Dry Law Report Vain; Too Long To be Crooned

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Some idle thoughts on a busy subject.

It took the Wickersham committee 20 months to find out what a rummy discovers in a night.

The commish is divided on revision, enforcement and repeal.

We've been getting all three for the last 10 years.

So long as the committee stays divided we can run between 'em.

What we cannot understand is why the commish didn't stay out a little longer and make it an even century.

That's the trouble with this country. Too many commissions reporting progress.

Expenditure of half-million dollars is terrific for this report. Lot of dough for such a little biscuit.

The report is practically a total waste. It's too long for Rudy Vallee to sing.

The whole thing looks like

Senate Should Abolish The Nye Committee

THE ACTIVITIES of the Nye Committee are merely, as far as can be discerned, publicity and promotion for Senator Nye and his associates. These activities are entirely exceeding the requirements of the situation and the intent of the Constitution and are invading and violating the very plain rights of the states.

United States senators are representatives of the several states.

The states have the fundamental, constitutional and moral right to elect the senators they desire to represent them and to have those senators allowed to represent them.

The Federal Government was created by the states.

The rights of the Federal Government were given to it by the states.

All the rights not given to the Federal Government were definitely reserved to the states.

The states as independent entities are represented in the Federal Government by their duly and constitutionally elected senators.

The Federal Government has no authority to deprive any of the states of their reserved rights.

The United States Senate is a part of the Federal Government, but the states are directly represented in the Federal Government by their several senators.

The source of congressional power to deal in any way with the election of senators is the article of the Constitution which provides—that the times, places and manner of holding elections for senators shall be prescribed in each state by the Legislature there, but that Congress may at any time make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators.

THE POWER thus conferred upon Congress is a limited one, and as Chief Justice Hughes himself argued before the Supreme Court of the United States in a recent and leading case:

> "It was not intended otherwise to detract from the freedom of the people of the states with respect to their political activities."

Senators are elected according to the election laws of the several states, and as long as they are legally and constitutionally elected, the United States Senate is transcending its moral rights and probably its constitutional rights and violating the rights of the states when it denies these duly elected senators their seats in the Senate because of rules and regulations, or even laws of Congress, which go beyond the power of the Senate as defined and expressly limited in the Constitution.

Inasmuch as the Senate is persistently failing in so many directions to maintain its constitutional rights and to sustain the dignity and the importance of the senatorial body, it is somewhat grotesque and incongruous that the Senate should go so far afield in one direction to exceed its rights.

But the situation is more vital than even this incongruity indicates.

THE ACTION of the Nye Committee, let us clearly realize, is a direct invasion of the rights of the states and a definite defiance of the rights of the people of the states, to be represented in the Senate by the individuals they have elected in accordance with the laws of the states and the Constitution of the United States.

The activity of the Nye Committee is based on no public demand or moral requirement, and the menace of its action is too great to be justified by the desire of its members to advertise themselves and to keep themselves—even though objectionably—in the public mind.

The Nye Committee should be abolished. The Senate of the United States should leave to the several states the election of their senators according to the laws of the states and the judgment of the people of the states.

It should heed the warning recently and impressively uttered by the United States Supreme Court not to ignore powers clearly vested in the

'MIND OPEN' ON REVISION, FESS SAYS

Verdict of G. O. P. to Guide President, Senator Holds; Wickersham Muddle Grows

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—To the already badly muddled controversy over the contradictory findings and "verdict" of the Wickersham report on prohibition was added today further confusion regarding the dry stand of President Hoover.

As a result of his message transmitting the report to Congress, the President yesterday was being hailed as the new and unqualified leader of the dry ranks, certain to carry along with him into the 1932 presidential campaign a definite bone-dry plank for the Republican party.

Today, however, all this was changed when Senator Fess emphasized that Mr. Hoover, in objecting to the Wickersham commission's substitute for the Eighteenth Amendment, had not closed the door definitely to all revision proposals.

REGARDED AS SPOKESMAN

Senator Fess, himself an outspoken dry and Hoover's personal selection as chairman of the Republican National Committee, is regarded as the White House spokesman in many quarters. His statement came after a personal call upon the President yesterday, when the two conferred on the Wickersham report and its attendant controversy.

Senator Fess reiterated his views today after first declaring last night in an address in Philadelphia that President Hoover would "go along" if the majority of the leaders in his party decide to favor revision of the Eighteenth Amendment in 1932.

The Ohioan would not say that Mr. Hoover favored any other revision or had any other idea for modification in mind, but con-

TO ARMS, BOYS, TO ARMS!—By Quin Hall

PINCHOT ASKS AID OF PEOPLE

HARRISBURG, Jan. 22.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot is appealing to the people of the state for support in his battle against uncontrolled monopolies.

Repeating his attack upon public utilities the state's chief executive urged that influence be brought to bear upon members of the Legislature in an address before the Pennsylvania Threshermen and Farmers' Protective Association. Samuel S. Lewis, secretary of the board, and John A. McSparran, secretary of agriculture, also spoke.

Gov. Pinchot announced plans for taking over 20,000 miles of township roads for state maintenance and development at the most effective method of insuring state relief funds in a saving of $6,000,000 to $10,000,000 to farmers of the state.

COUNTY WORKS BIDS OPENED

Bids on several county improvements were opened at a meeting of the County Commissioners today and referred to the controller for tabulation.

Lowest bidder for the improvement of Elwyn road was M. O'Hern, at $120,102.60, improvement of Center street, through West View and Ross Township, S. T. Bretemarkle at $7,144, stated for sustaining the county support from Coal, Sand and Gravel Company, $1.18 a ton.

Park Watches Outcome of Hearing Given 2 Sleuths Linked in Lottery Racket

District Attorney A. T. Park today was awaiting outcome of police investigation of charges that two city detectives were involved in the numbers racket, as officers raided an alleged lottery headquarters at 408 Logan street, opposite the Franklin School.

Acting on complaint of nearby residents and school authorities, police of Center avenue station today invaded a barber shop at the Logan street address arrested four Negroes and confiscated pads and other equipment.

Those arrested gave their names as Gilbert Jenkins, 1645 Ohio way; Benjamin Anderson, 1522 Wylie avenue; Thomas Bradley, 148 Fullerton street, and I. M. Thomas, 20 Logan street.

IGNORES CHARGES

Prosecutor Park said he intended taking no action regarding a charge by Dominic Cinquegrani, alleged numbers racketeer, of 710 Graphic street, that he was employed by City Detective James Noon and Robert Burke, pending action by the Police Trial Board.

The trial board held a private hearing yesterday. At its conclusion Supt. P. P. Walsh said the investigation would be continued.

Cinquegrani is said to have repeated before the police board his testimony given at East End Police Station Tuesday. At that time he testified he was employed by the two sleuths who told him where to get business. They had arrested him, he testified, because they thought he was "cheating."

BLAME 'FRAME-UP'

Noon and Burke denied the charge, branding it a frameup.

Cinquegrani was held for court by Magistrate Charles Papale, charged with operating a lottery.

He was at liberty today under $2,500 bond posted before Alderman John A. Collins, 4731 Second avenue, for trial in court.

Explaining his refusal to permit a representative of the district attorney's office into the trial board inquiry into the alleged activities of Detectives Burke and Noon yesterday, Clark said it has been the custom to extend the option of a closed hearing to safety employes appearing before the board.

Joseph Wise found a revolver and pursued. At close range he pulled the trigger, but the cartridge failed to explode. The elder Wise, hearing the commotion, ran downstairs just too late to see the holdup men.

Policemen Ralph Kelly and Harry Moore, summoned by a telephone call that a holdup was in progress, apprehended Kozera.

Mrs. Wise, in telling of her experience, said:

He made the charge as he continued a public examination of directors of the bank in his dual role of special assistant attorney general and assistant district attorney.

POLICE HUNT 7 IN STOCK SALES

Officers of Firm Sought on Charges of Conspiracy To Cheat and Defraud

Seven of 10 officers, directors and salesmen of the Atlantic Drug and Chemical Company are being sought today by constables from the office of Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan, where informations have been filed on charges of conspiracy to cheat and defraud and misdemeanor and false pretense in connection with alleged violations of the state securities act.

The conspiracy charges were filed by Chief County Detective George W. Murren under instructions from District Attorney Andrew T. Park. The district attorney's office is co-operating with the State Securities Commission in the action against the group.

300 VICTIMS

The defendants, through their former offices in the Law and Finance Building, Fourth avenue, are accused of having defrauded 300 residents of Western Pennsylvania out of approximately $500,000 since last August when the company began operations.

The seven men still sought are believed to have fled the district when they learned of the securities commission investigation. The state investigation has been directed by Alexander P. Lindsay, counsel for the commission; his assistant, Attorney J. Wray Connelly, and Mark I. Walker, investigator.

USED GOOD NAMES

According to Attorney Lindsay, the salesmen would mail a bottle of cold remedy to a prospect, later visit the prospect and talk him into investing money in the company. Many subscribed for stock, ranging from $100 to $2,500, Lindsay asserted. Physicians and specialists had been made members of the board of directors and ministers had been duped into becoming salesmen, he said.

Those charged with conspiracy to defraud are Henry M. Bass, president of the concern; David S. Hammond, secretary; Alexander I. Thompson, alleged director, and A. S. Guyer, J. Ritchie, Dr. William H. Cook and Roy E. Smith, salesmen.

False pretense charges have been filed against all these except Guyer by Walker of the state commission. He has also filed misdemeanor and false pretense charges against Joseph A. Smith, L. Williamson and F. M. Foley, salesmen.

ROBBERS LEAP FROM TRAIN

A robber stood guard while the others went through the car, snatching money and valuables. As the train slowed down for Bellefontaine, the bandits leaped from the rear car and disappeared into the darkness.

The man shot was Edwin K. Nelson, of Tampa, Fla. He shouted when aroused, and was ordered to "keep quiet." He shouted again, and was shot, the bullet piercing his right arm and chest. He was in a serious condition today with a punctured lung.

The passengers in the robbery and the amounts taken from them were: E. W. Warner, Cincinnati, $20; A. McPherson and wife, Cedar Springs, Ont., $90; W. W. Young and wife, Toronto, Ont., not robbed; Mrs. L. G. Dearing, Chattanooga, Tenn., ring valued at $2,000, and Mrs. E. J. Zacharias, Atlanta, Ga., a diamond-studded wrist watch valued at $500 and $60 in cash.

Warner said Mrs. McPherson saved some of her jewelry by a clever ruse. Warner, robbed of cash, said she pretended to be weeping and held $300 in jewels in her corset against her night gown as she stood in the aisle.

Houston Miner Dies On Way to Hospital

Joseph Virgo, 26, of Midland Mine No. 1, Pittsburgh Coal Company, at Houston, Pa., died while being taken to Mercy Hospital today from injuries suffered in a motor accident in the mine.

KEPHART RAPS BLUE LAWS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—Justice John W. Kephart, of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, yesterday urged repeal of the blue laws.

Justice Kephart told the Rotary Club that he himself was not against the strict Sabbath observance laws, but that they were that type of law "that transgresses upon the liberty of the people." After his speech he elaborated:

"The blue laws are a fine example of the type of law we should get rid of. If it were put to a vote of the people in Cambria County, where I have my home, I know it would be voted out."

$68,985 Reported By Y. W. Workers

The Y. W. C. A.'s annual budget drive neared the halfway mark of its $140,000 goal as today's receipts swelled the total to $68,985. Of the $19,717 received today, $13,000 represented special gifts.

French-Italian Difficulty Laid to Pride by Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 22.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The situation between France and Italy again illustrates how extremely difficult it is for nations to get away from the age-old policy of trying to rely mostly on force for security. Those nations were unable to agree on naval armaments at the London conference. They did arrange a truce in naval building which is reported now ending, with Italy proposing to build gun for gun with France.

Calvin Coolidge

About the only progress made is a tacit admission all around that such action is not a good solution of the problems involved. National pride is the main difficulty. Both countries declare their desire for peace, but to each security means more arms in their own hands or the promise of more arms to be furnished by other people.

The Washington and London treaties show these differences can be adjusted. Therein lies the hope. The pressure of high taxes will work on the side of reason. With the protection of the league covenant, the Locarno agreement, and the world peace treaty, the European nations are in a position to make concessions in armaments. They know the attitude of our public opinion on peace and our disinclination to finance war.

SLAYER GUILTY IN 2D DEGREE

A jury in Criminal Court today returned a second degree murder verdict against Tony Antonari, of Kirkwood street, who was charged with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Ellen Rice, a Negro, of Runnette street, June 10.

As the jury foreman announced the verdict, Antonari, whose defense was loss of memory, burst into tears, and, still sobbing, he was led from the courtroom. His attorney, Warren H. VanKirk announced he would ask for a new trial. Sentence will be imposed tomorrow.

Wild shots, which the commonwealth contended he fired at William Van Schiver, of Homestead, with whom he had been quarreling, struck Mrs. Rice, who was seated in an automobile parked in Kirkwood street, and resulted in her death.

OWENS IGNORES LIQUOR TRIAL

Fred Owens, admitted bootlegger of the Hill district, whom Magistrate Leo Rothenberg freed on payment of a fine, failed to appear in court today to answer a charge of violating the Snyder act.

Owens was arrested by County Detective Thomas Calig, at the direction of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, after Rothenberg had fined the man and held a woman, mother of 13, for court trial in November.

At the magistrate's hearing Owens admitted operating a whisky-cutting plant, where police confiscated 723 pints of liquor. He was fined $100.

At liberty on $2,000 bail, Owens is said to be confined in a hospital.

Owens also failed to appear in Central Police Court this morning to answer a charge of keeping a disorderly house, made following his arrest in a raid last Tuesday at 1231 Gilmore way.

Revenue Taxes Show $107,179,672 Drop

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—A sharp decline in the income of the government from tax collections in the last half of the 1930 calendar year is shown in statistics issued by the Internal Revenue Bureau. It reported that from last July 1 to December 21 collections were $1,396,272,075 or $107,179,672 less than for the similar period of the previous year.

Admissions to theaters and places of amusement decreased by more than half from $2,094,295 in the last half of 1929 to $1,408,181 in the same period of 1930.

M'DONALD FATE IN BALANCE

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—The fate of the Labor government hung in the balance today as it faced the uncertainties of the trade disputes bill's second reading. Defeat on this issue would practically compel Premier MacDonald to resign.

The government yesterday suffered its second defeat in the last few months, but decided not to resign. The defeat came when the education and school attendance bill was amended by the House of Commons over the government's objections. The amendment was carried by a vote of 282 to 249.

Although the government survived yesterday's sudden adverse decision, it was felt its cherished education bill was dealt a mortal blow. The free churches will now campaign against the bill and the prospects of 500,000 British children staying in school until they are 15 instead of leaving at 14 as they do now have receded.

Walker Improves, Doctors Order Trip

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Mayor James J. Walker, who has been ill with a general run-down condition, was reported improved today. He planned to return to City Hall at the end of the week, but his physicians advised him to remain at home for several days and urged him to leave New York for a week's rest in the South.

Italian Financier Seized by Fascisti

TURIN, Italy, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Arrest of the Italian financier, Ricardo Gualino, made yesterday by the so-called "political squadron" of the Fascist party of Turin for "motives of public security," was revealed here today. In financial circles Gualino was said today to have lost millions of dollars because of the world depression.

Fascisti Students Riot at Heidelberg

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Riotous scenes disturbed the historic campus of Heidelberg University early today when Fascist students attacked Jewish and Socialist classmates. Police invaded the university grounds and used clubs to quell the disorder. Numerous windows were broken and two university officials were injured.

TOM MIX SUIT NEAR JURY

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Tom Mix denied on the witness stand yesterday the charge of Zack T. Miller in a $325,000 breach of contract suit that he ever agreed to join Miller's 101 Ranch shows. Miller testified Monday that Mix once worked on his Oklahoma ranch as a "dude cowboy" for $34 a week, but in 1929 made and broke a promise to appear with Miller's circus at $10,000 weekly.

The appearance of Mix followed denial of a motion for non-suit by his attorneys after the plaintiff rested. The case probably will reach the jury today.

The former film star, now with the Ringling Circus interests, testified Miller once offered to pay him $1,000 "every time the sun set" to head a cowboy troupe in the 101 Shows, but said the matter never passed the discussion stage.

Mix also denied he told his former wife, Mrs. Olive Stokes Mix, he had decided to join "101" and anticipated realizing additional profits through exhibitions of his horse, Tony, as testified by Mrs. Mix.

Woman's Card Game Loss Embroils Chicago Political Chiefs

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Two Illinois political leaders were embroiled today in a controversy that emerged from a $50,000 loan to Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, collector of internal revenue and the alleged victim of card sharks.

Edward R. Litsinger, member of the Cook County Board of Review, political friend of Mrs. Blacklidge and once Republican aspirant for the mayoralty of Chicago, charged he was swindled of the $50,000 he lent the federal official and said he would prosecute her.

Mrs. Blacklidge, in seclusion at her hotel here, sobbed over the telephone that she had been duped of her $207,500 winnings at faro and another $50,000 she borrowed from Litsinger "to collect the faro debt."

Mrs. Blacklidge, Chicago club woman and the widow of a druggist, was made the internal revenue collector in April, 1929, for the Chicago and Northern Illinois district, second largest in the United States. Senator Charles S. Deneen, whom she had supported politically, was her sponsor. Her husband and son both died of pneumonia last April.

The woman's winnings from three card players in a Springfield hotel were understood to have reached $207,500 when they asked that she produce $50,000 in place of the check she had brought to Springfield. She returned to Chicago and placed her request before Litsinger, she said.

Litsinger alleged that Mrs. Blacklidge borrowed the money on the pretext that it was needed to settle details of her late husband's estate.

After the faro players vanished with the woman's $50,000 cash, Litsinger summoned police, and Mrs. Blacklidge was taken to the Springfield station, later to be released.

She said that she would return to Chicago this afternoon and "get to the bottom of this dirty deal." She said she could not understand Litsinger's "turning against me."

In a lengthy statement made in Chicago, Litsinger offered a $2,000 reward "for the arrest and conviction of any one of her confederates."

RAISE $103,401 FOR RED CROSS

A total of $103,401 toward Pittsburgh's quota of $300,000 in the national Red Cross appeal for drought relief was reported by workers last night. A committee of 100 prominent Pittsburghers headed by J. Rogers Flannery is aiding in the canvass of the city. The Red Cross in a statement said:

"Drouth conditions through the Middle West and Southern States have brought extreme suffering to thousands of families in rural communities where there are no resources for meeting such an emergency.

"In Pittsburgh, as in many other large centers throughout the country, there is distress from many causes, but in these centers there are resources which can relieve the distress.

"For these reasons the citizens of Pittsburgh and of other cities throughout the United States have been asked to contribute as generously as they are able to the relief of drouth stricken areas."

HOUSE DEBATES FOOD RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—The controversy over a $25,000,000 appropriation for the American Red Cross to feed hungry citizens shifted to the House today as the Senate sent the Interior Department appropriation bill to the opposite end of the capitol.

While the House was reported as overwhelmingly in favor of the Red Cross appropriation, administration leaders planned to send the bill to the House Appropriation Committee "for hearings." The President's advisers hoped to delay the fund a few days by an inquiry to determine whether the Red Cross can raise the necessary relief funds by popular appeal or needs a federal appropriation.

Red Cross officials, who already have gone on record as opposed to government aid, will be called before the committee, if the administration plan is successful. Democratic leaders of the House may battle to force a direct vote on the floor since sponsors of the federal fund have insisted it will be needed in addition to all popular subscriptions, before winter ends.

Faith Healing Wins Churchmen's Favor

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—With only three dissenting votes the Lower House of the Canterbury Convocation of the Church of England today gave its approval to faith healing, and asked that it be given the official sanction of the church.

The vote on the resolution followed several speeches, in which Christian Science was called fantastic as a religious faith, yet was highly praised as the greatest means of faith healing.

Wife Who Wounded Co-Ed Sorry Now

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—An architect's wife who shot a Tulsa University co-ed her estranged husband once employed was sorry today and hoping her victim would live.

Mrs. Alma Endacott, wife of Asbury Endacott, architect and former city commissioner, was under $2,500 bond on a charge of attempted murder, and Miss Charlcie Caudell, of Meadow, Tex., student, lay in a hospital with two bullet wounds in her body.

Scratch on Hand Halts Greenleaf

DETROIT, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Because of a costly scratch, Ralph Greenleaf is unable to do his stuff in pocket billiards for a while. When he was trying to open a window in a railroad car his right hand went through the pane. Seven stitches were taken.

STILL REPAIRER IN DRY NET

Arthur Hogg, 2111 Metropolitan street, was a victim of circumstances early today. A tinsmith by trade, Hogg had a still in his shop for repairs yesterday afternoon. He also had a small quantity of whisky hidden away in a charcoal keg, which he was keeping for his own use. Fire broke out in the shop early today and investigating officers, finding the keg and a portion of a still, arrested Hogg for operating a whisky aging plant.

In North Side Police Court Magistrate Raymond Schneider, a lifelong friend of Hogg, said:

"You were a victim of a bad break in that fire had to break out when you had a small amount of whisky and that still in your shop. It might have happened to anyone. On the grounds of possession, however, I'll have to fine you $50 or 30 days."

Hogg only had $49, so he borrowed $1 from the magistrate.

BANKHEAD, WIFE SAVED IN FIRE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Representative and Mrs. Bankhead, of Alabama, early today were carried to safety down a ladder from their blazing home on Nineteenth street.

Other than shock of exposure in the freezing weather, they were unharmed.

Their daughter, Miss Tallulah Bankhead, who recently returned to this country after attaining stardom on the stage in England, was in New York visiting friends.

Russia Facing War, Soviet Youth Told

MOSCOW, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Soviet Russia is threatened with the greatest war in history, Commissar of War Voroshilov declared in an address today to the Congress of Communist Youths.

The Soviet Union he declared, must organize the masses not only to defend the country against inevitable intervention, but for victory over the country which first draws the sword against us."

Explosion of Anesthetic In Lung Kills Woman

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Medical attention today was centered on the unusual death of Mrs. Maude Branton, 45, of Chino, Cal., who died on an operating table here yesterday when an anesthetic being administered her became ignited and exploded in her lungs.

The woman was being operated upon for an abdominal affliction by Dr. C. A. Warner when the explosion occurred. Dr. G. T. Stout was administering the anesthetic.

Mrs. Branton was inhaling deeply from the saturated cone of nitrous-oxide and drew the flame into her lungs, which caused the explosion. Dr. Stout said:

"I am at a loss to know exactly what caused it. I can only attribute it to atmospheric static and a combination of circumstances which made the accident possible."

An inquest will be held today. Health Officer George Parrish said he would begin an immediate investigation of the case.

Sousa, in Hospital, Writes Music to 'Annabel Lee'

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—John Philip Sousa, the march king, has fallen under the magic of Edgar Allan Poe's poetry and is setting "Annabel Lee" to music—working from a hospital chair. Poe is buried in Baltimore.

Fifty years of active musical life and 350 compositions lie behind Sousa, and yet when the effects of an old injury sent him to Johns Hopkins Hospital for treatment, he could not break off working.

Sitting in his hospital room, carrying his 76 years lightly, he smilingly said:

"When I learned I would not have to be operated on, I felt I must write. The thought of Edgar Allan Poe came to me because I was in Baltimore and I thought of his musical poem, 'Annabel Lee.' I decided to set it to music.

"This won't be finished in any week or so, however. There is a good deal of careful revision necessary to do justice to this beautiful poem. The music is in the words. I believe the treatment calls for a theme which would almost be a monotone."

SEEK CONGRESS QUIZ ON DRY FINDINGS

'Antis' Demand Light as to Whether Hoover Swayed Wickersham Board Action

tented [illegible] brief explained.

"I just simply say that Mr. Hoover did not close the door to any revision when he rejected this substitute amendment because it would throw prohibition forever into politics."

BOARD CONCLUSIONS

The [illegible] board's conclusions, [illegible]:

"All the commission agree that if the amendment is revised it should be made to read substantially as follows:

"Section 1.—The Congress shall have power to regulate or to prohibit the manufacture traffic in or transportation of intoxicating liquors within the importation thereof into and the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes."

Meanwhile the storm of criticism [illegible] of the Wickersham commission's [illegible] report continued [illegible] with Senate and House anti-drys demanding an investigation of congressional [illegible] was an inquiry to learn whether President Hoover influenced the drafting of the commission's conclusions.

REGARDED AS JOKE

Although administration leaders professed to regard it as a "joke" there was a possibility the Senate might approve the Tydings resolution authorizing an inquiry to determine whether the commission originally recommended revision of the Eighteenth Amendment only to be persuaded into approving it later. This amazing reversal was indicated in some of the individual opinions which referred peculiarly to the commission's recommendation for revision without further trial.

SENATORS DIVIDED

Many senators were confused by these digressions in the individual opinions. The commission first recommended a change in the Eighteenth Amendment placing control of intoxicants squarely in the hands of Congress. They were divided in what to do to which to do about it—the [illegible] to hold an independent [illegible] inquiry [illegible] in the hands of the Wickersham commission or to others invited the members of the Wickersham commission [illegible] the method by which it had [illegible] amazing report was compiled.

Some agitation was under way to make public all the testimony taken by the commission in secret. It was widely reported this testimony, interspersed with observations by members of the commission, would reveal a preponderate sentiment against the present amendment.

WOULD FORCE VOTE

Senator Millard E. Tydings (Dem.) of Maryland an anti-dry announced he would "try to force a vote" on his resolution of inquiry. It would authorize the Senate Judiciary Committee to summon George W. Wickersham, chairman of the commission, to explain how seven members filed anti-dry individual opinions only to sign a bone-dry conclusion, Tydings said.

"If the parliamentary situation permits it I will get a showdown on my resolution."

To this Senator James E. Watson, Republican floor leader, retorted:

"Tydings is not serious. He's just having some fun with the commission."

The anti-drys rallied to Tydings. Senator Blaine (Rep.) of Wisconsin declared the report needed "considerable explanation," saying:

"The inconsistencies between the general report and the comment of individual members are so outstanding, an inquiry is justified. Some of these inconsistencies might be harmonized if members of the commission were called before the Judiciary Committee."

NORRIS WILLING

Senator Norris, insurgent leader and chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said he would have no reluctance in investigating the report itself. Asked whether he favored another prohibition inquiry by Congress he added:

"I started an inquiry some time ago, but it was stopped by the commission's investigation. If Congress is satisfied with that report, there is no need for another inquiry; if Congress is dissatisfied, I will not shirk the task."

Dry leaders were reluctant to discuss Tydings' maneuver or the apparent conflict between the principal report and the individual opinions as to what had been recommended. Senator Borah (Rep.) of Washington author of the "five and ten" bill declined to comment. Senator Sheppard (Dem.) of Texas, father of the Prohibition amendment, said he was satisfied with the commission's conclusions.

Senator Brookhart (Rep.) of Iowa, insurgent dry declared he favored a Congressional inquiry. He praised President Hoover's message to Congress regarding the eighteenth amendment.

Wickersham Report Cost $6 Per Word

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(INS)—The federal government paid at the rate of $6.06 net word for the [illegible] and opinions reported to the Congress by the Wickersham commission according to [illegible] records.

The [illegible] expended [illegible] months of [illegible] supplied [illegible] ly 75,000 words. Congress appropriated $500,000 to cover the commission's expenses.

ROBBED IN HIS SHOP

BUTCHER MAX SMOLEZER IN HOLE BANDIT MADE

Through this brick-shattered pane at 2410 Wylie avenue a Negro bandit entered and left with $15 from the cash register, $50 in meats and $350 from Smolezer, who went to investigate the noise.

CURRAN INSISTS ON REPEAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Henry H. Curran said last night the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment is opposed to any change in the prohibition laws except outright repeal.

Curran, president of the organization, in a statement commenting on the Wickersham report asserted that to restore to the American people in the several states their inherent right of home rule in the regulation of their personal habits of life the repeal must be complete. He continued:

"Any 'revision' that puts power in Congress 'to prohibit or regulate' is only a denial in a different form of the home rule that is essential to free us from the dangerous difficulties in which we are now involved."

GUNMAN ROBS HILL BUTCHER

Max Smolezer, a butcher of 2410 Wylie avenue, was held up in his shop early this morning by an armed Negro who robbed him of $350 and escaped. The bandit ordered Smolezer into an ice box and forced the butcher to give him $400 which he told the Negro he had hidden there. The man then took $50 from the register, four hams and three sides of bacon from the meat racks and fled.

Smolezer heard the noise of falling glass about 6 o'clock this morning. When he investigated, the Negro confronted him, saying:

"Hands up. I want money—quick. Give it to me or I'll shoot."

Smolezer obeyed.

RITCHIE SCORES DRY REPORT

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 22.—(INS)—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, an outstanding foe of prohibition, today termed the voluminous report and individual opinions of the Wickersham commission on prohibition a "chaos of opinion," He said:

"The trouble is that they felt the necessity of signing something to which hardly any of them could agree.

"Doesn't this chaos of opinion, in a commission drawn from all parts of the country, as to what the right remedy is, show clearly that there is only one remedy?

"The problem belongs to the people of the states and the communities of the country. The federal government took it away from them and tried to settle it for everybody. That has failed."

Cook's Wedding Told In Society Column

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 22.—(AP)—One society column in a newspaper might indicate that Denmark is quite a democratic country. Between paragraphs telling about movements of the crown prince and the wedding of a diplomat appeared the following:

"Marriage has been contracted between Miss Kelty Poulsen, cook, and Mr. Ludwig Steinmetz, waiter."

Attempt to Thaw Pipes Starts Fire

An attempt to thaw frozen water pipes by burning newspapers resulted, police say, in a small fire in the home of Mrs. Mary Mangenia at Carver and St. Andrew streets, East End, this morning.

Wickersham Park Suggested Name For Glades

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(INS)—When objection was made to a bill in the House to create a national park in the Florida Everglades on the ground that much of the land is under water, Representative Black, Dem., of New York observed:

"The bill serves a good purpose. Inasmuch as the district is half wet and half dry, it should be called Wickersham Park."

RECORD CROWD AT AUTO SHOW

That crowds attending the thirty-first Pittsburgh automobile show will set a record this year, despite the depression, was forecast by officials today following a check-up of attendance last night. Every day since the show opened crowds have been larger than on similar days last year, they said.

With more than 40 displays in which some of the finest cars yet produced are shown, lovers of the automobile find plenty to keep them interested from the time they enter Motor Square Garden until they leave. Priced to meet every purse, these cars form the most interesting exhibit of any previous show.

One of the outstanding attractions this year is the free-wheeling, latest development in automotive mechanics.

Man Cut by Glass In Auto, Car Crash

When an automobile reported driven by John Moll, of 503 Penn avenue, Turtle Creek, collided with a trolley car in Forbes street at Beeler street last night, Sam Esseg, of 19 Tannehill street, a passenger in the street car, was cut by glass when a window was broken. He was taken to Mercy Hospital. Traffic was halted for 15 minutes.

BROOK EXHIBIT SHOWS ARDOR FOR BEAUTY

Works of Painter of New Order on Display Here; Aesthetic Quality Rules

By PENELOPE REDD

Alexander Brook has a one-man exhibition of [illegible] at the Junior League. Not many Pittsburgh will care for Brook enough, but a few will care a great deal. Two of his paintings lent by [illegible] and [illegible].

Penelope Redd

folk [illegible] neglected. Pottery [illegible] are [illegible] form.

ONE OF NEW ORDER

Brook belongs to the new order of painters. He [illegible] the turn of the century, he did not commence [illegible] until 1918, when [illegible] already accepted. Therefore Brook moved with [illegible] through the complexities of the new world of art.

His exhibition convinces that nothing [illegible] aesthetic perfection as [illegible] it is satisfactory. [illegible] the greater part of the [illegible] in the country at Woodstock, [illegible] at Cross River he depends upon the familiar forms [illegible] that compose them [illegible] has little stimulus. The subjects [illegible] have nothing to do with fashionable concerns.

MODERN CONCEPTION

"Compote With Fruit" and "Broken Pottery" have the classic style of Chardin, famed French old master. To traditional classicism Brook adds the modern conception of art not as a process of visual imitation alone, but as fresh creation.

Brook may develop a genre as he mellows a little with years. Judging from "Cross River" he may bring his painting closer to life. In "Cross River" he sets down a commonplace village stirred by the first faint pulse of spring. The whole has the air of a reborn earth.

It represents one of Brook's own beliefs. He said:

"A picture when done should represent a surprising experience completed; the more succinctly it is realized, the greater pleasure it will give to the sympathetic beholder."

Hoover Asks Fund For Dope Parley

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Immediate appropriation of $35,000 was recommended by President Hoover for United States participation in the international conference on the limitation of the manufacture of narcotic drugs, at Geneva, next May.

A report by Secretary Stimson, enclosed by the President, cited recent seizures of narcotics in New York Harbor as indicative of the extent of the efforts to smuggle narcotic drugs into the United States."

Dry Data Can't be Crooned

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

one of those Mexican divorces. Good in some states and how-have-you-been in others.

One of our steadiest productions is the war in Nicaragua.

It's only a riot in a telephone booth. But we are nursing it along.

Every once in a legislative while some senator tightens up his garters and in a big, manly voice demands a saucer for his coffee.

But the little Marine scrimmage goes on steadily on the isthmus.

An isthmus is a neck of land that no collar will fit.

Augustino Sandino is the lad who seems to think that Nicaragua should have its own government.

Well we can't give him a constitution. We proved you don't need one of those things.

But if Sandino can kill enough people, we can guarantee him a city charter.

It's not a big war. But it's the only one we have. It is not very pretty, but what can take its place? Even the ugliest Gila Monster has someone, somewhere, whom he calls mother.

They have tried to argue with Sandino who sees no reason why a man shouldn't bounce around on a rubber plantation. He has tried to surrender three or four times, but has always been refreshed by a congressional vote of confidence.

We have 1,000 Marines down there at present. We wanted to send more, but are afraid that Nicholas Murray Butler will accuse us of proselyting among the preparatory football teams.

It's one of those affairs that must be handled with mittens. You can spoil a good war by rushing the Liberty loans along too suddenly.

We are not in the League of Nations. So therefore we have no allies to help spoil our skirmishes.

Augustino is a patriot who loves his native land which is mostly swamp and mountain. It is no good for real estate gadfets. Therefore, the only thing you can do with a native land like that is love it.

5 WRITS ISSUED IN RUM CASES

Temporary injunctions were granted in Federal Court against five places in Erie, where violations of the prohibition law are alleged in bills of complaint filed by Robert S. Krause, deputy prohibition administrator. Final hearings will be held March 16.

The premises were described and the alleged proprietors named in the complaints as follows: Speakeasy, second floor, 117 East Twenty-first street, Sam Oltan; speakeasy and barroom, first floor, 111 East Sixteenth street, Charles Flemma; store, restaurant, first floor, and club, second floor, 109 West Eighteenth street, Charles Green; restaurant, 425 French street, Andy Markopolis; and store, 1084 West Twelfth street, Jacob Cohen.

Meyer Cogan, of Erie, was fined $500 by Judge R. M. Gibson, when he pleaded guilty of violating the prohibition law.

ADD 10 TO JOB CENSUS STAFF

Ten new enumerators in the United States census of unemployment, selected from among persons who served in the decennial census, were to start work today, James E. Routley, local census supervisor, announced. The addition to the force of about 200 men and women was attributed by officials to lack of co-operation of persons interrogated. Absence from home when the census taker calls was also given as a cause of delay.

The government gave the local bureau two weeks in which to complete the survey. Half of that time had elapsed yesterday. About one-fourth of the almost 500 census districts in the city are reported completed.

Taxpayers Hold 12th Ward Meeting

Members of the Twelfth Ward Taxpayers' Association met last night at the office of William A. Means, 6428 Frankstown avenue, and perfected plans for an appeal to Common Pleas Court to force a reduction in property assessments. There will be a final meeting Saturday, according to Attorney Hymen Schlesinger, who, with Attorney James Malone, Jr., represent the organization.

To own your own home is one of life's most desirable objectives.

Many who pay rent could easily own their own home if they would get serious about saving enough to start.

One of the most sensible and easy ways to home ownership is to buy a lot—on time payments if necessary.

After the lot is clear, there are many responsible builders who will arrange easy payments to finance a substantial amount of what the new home costs.

This institution has two plans designed to help ambitious people of modest income to home ownership.

The first is a 15 Year Monthly Payment Mortgage Plan, which is for new homes only. We will lend 60% of our appraised value, which is to be repaid in equal monthly installments like rent, over a period of 15 years—the payments including both interest and principal.

The other is the 10 Year Monthly Payment Plan—not necessarily on new homes—which pays out in 10 years.

Upon request, we will be pleased to mail you booklets explaining both plans.

Our Mortgage Department welcomes discussion with those who contemplate home purchase. Its counsel will be sound and experienced.

WORK OUTLINED BY WELFARE AGENCIES

Annual Meetings Held By Three Groups Affiliated With Jewish Federation

Annual meetings of three of the 17 agencies working under the Federation of Jewish philanthropies, which next month opens a drive for $450,000 to carry on its work, were held in Rodef Shalom Temple last night.

They were the Jewish Family Welfare Association, headed by Eugene Herzog, president; the Pittsburgh Bureau of Jewish Children, headed by Leo Lehman, and the United Business Service, the employment and vocational phase of the Federation's work, headed by Louis J. Adler.

294 FAMILIES AIDED

Few Jewish families have been forced to seek aid from official welfare agencies, owing to the manner in which the Jewish Family Welfare Association has done its work, the report of that organization developed. Approximately $30,000 was expended in aiding 294 families of about 1,200 individuals. This, including $6,500 expended at the request of the city's Department of Public Welfare, was $1,700 less than the amount spent in 1929, in spite of the increased need resulting from unemployment in 1930.

The greatest problem reported as confronting the United Business Service has been the Jewish businessmen forced into bankruptcy and unable readily to accustom themselves to new vocations. In the year's report submitted by Miss Bella B. Greenberg, director, emphasis was placed on the Handcraft Guild, a workshop experimenting in teaching subnormal men woodwork and upholstering so that they may become wage earners.

CHILDREN GIVEN HOMES

The Pittsburgh Bureau for Jewish Children, according to its report, has worked closely with the Jewish Family Welfare Association and other groups in the federation, placing in foster homes children whose parents are unable to care for them.

The report for the organization was made by Mrs. Bella Rosenberg, acting superintendent.

Thieves Fail to Get Rum in Drug Store

Thieves believed to have been seeking liquor and narcotics, ransacked the drug store of William Lehner, 4108 Brownsville road, Brentwood, early today, but left without obtaining anything of value, the proprietor notified police.

Doctor Denies Fleas Cause Heart Disease

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Dr. Hugh McCulloch of St. Louis, associate editor of the Heart Association Journal, denied here today the statement that fleas are carried in the spread of heart disease, attributed to him in an address he gave Monday night before the Chicago Heart Association.

Dr. McCulloch said that he prescribed as an antiquated theory, held by an early English scientist, the idea that certain kinds of fleas are believed to carry the germs of rheumatic fever from which heart trouble develops and that he had been misquoted as saying this as his own.

TRAFFIC DINNER SPEAKER HERE

City manager form of government with its non-partisan advantages was credited for Cincinnati's foresight in prosperous times to prepare for unemployment, according to Mayor Russell Wilson, here as the principal speaker tonight at the annual dinner of the Traffic and Transportation Association of Pittsburgh in the William Penn Hotel.

He said:

"We have what is known as the Chartered Organization, of which 2,500 women are active workers at the polls. Being non-partisan, the ticket that the organization places on a ballot includes Republicans, Democrats and independents. It is the mayor's duty to protect the city manager from political pressures. With such independence, it was possible for the establishment of an employment study group before the depression."

The address of welcome will be delivered by Herbert A. Leech, of the Chesapeake and Ohio-Pere Marquette Railways and president of the association. Judge Frank P. Patterson, of Common Pleas Court, will be toastmaster.

OBITUARY

Clarke Funeral.

Funeral services for Harry G. Clarke, president of the Harry G. Clarke Company, Inc., an insurance agency, who died Tuesday in Baltimore, will be held in his home, 1530 Grandin avenue, Dormont, at 8 o'clock tonight. Private services and cremation will take place later in the Beinhauer funeral home. Before entering the insurance field he was an electrical engineer with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. Later he was associated with the Prudential Insurance Company, in charge of the Wheeling office. Six years ago he came to Pittsburgh and incorporated the company which bears his name. He was a member of the Dormont Methodist Episcopal Church, the Masonic fraternity, and the Almas Club, of Dormont. He leaves his widow, a son, John P. Clarke, two daughters, Lillian and Ruth Clarke, all of Pittsburgh, and his mother, Mrs. Anna Clarke, of Ocean Beach, Cal.

McKee Funeral.

Funeral services for George E. McKee, 5745 Northumberland avenue, contractor and builder, who died suddenly at his home Monday, will be held at the home at 8 p. m. today. Burial will be in the Union Cemetery, Callery, Pa. Mr. McKee was born in Dunbar, Fayette County, and came to Pittsburgh at the age of 17. He was an elder of the Third United Presbyterian Church, of Pittsburgh, treasurer of the Greenfield B. & L. Association, first vice president of the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade, and a member of Hazel Glen Lodge, I. O. O. F. He leaves his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Mabel A. Powers, of Boonton, N. J.; three sons, Clyde F., Jack E., and George McKee, Jr., at home, a sister, Mrs. Jean M. Irvine, of Callery, Pa., and two brothers, R. C., of Baltimore, and James B. McKee, of Pittsburgh.

Hyams Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Agnes McNeil Hyams, 29, wife of Harry H. Hyams, who died Tuesday in the Montefiore Hospital, will be held tomorrow from her home at 1303 Mississippi avenue. Burial will be in Mt. Lebanon Cemetery. Mrs. Hyams is the daughter of Warden John McNeil, of the county jail. She was a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and a former teacher in the city high schools. She was a member of the Dormont College Club and the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church. She leaves her husband; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McNeil, and three children, Betty Jane, Mary Lou and John Hyams, at home.

Edward Hale.

Edward Hale, a member of one of Pittsburgh's pioneer families, son of the late Henry G. Hale and Mrs. Elizabeth S. Hale, died today in the Sewickley Valley Hospital. He was a resident of Forest Grove, Robinson Township. Mr. Hale was born September 11, 1858. He was a member of the Trinity Episcopal Church, Pittsburgh. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Martha Wilson Hale; one daughter, Miss Elizabeth S. Hale, and a son, Henry G. Hale, Jr. Services will be held in the H. Samson funeral home, 537 Neville street, Saturday afternoon. Interment will take place in Homewood.

James Dougherty

Requiem high mass for James L. Dougherty, 54, musician and composer, who died Monday at his home, 1207 Macon street, Swissvale, will be observed at St. Anselm's Roman Catholic Church, Swissvale, tomorrow morning. He was a member of Braddock Lodge No. 883, B. P. O. E., and a former director of St. Brendan's choir. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Alice Dougherty; a daughter, Mrs. Alice White, of Pittsburgh, and two brothers, Patrick, of Pittsburgh, and Michael Dougherty, of Warren, O.

2 BOYS FREED IN SHOOTING

Howard Mahaffey, 16, and William Norton, 15, both of Bennett street, held by police after the fatal shooting of Carmen Toreaso, 13, who died in Pittsburgh Hospital, were released yesterday on their own recognizances to appear at the inquest into Toreaso's death next week. The shooting occurred while the boys were hunting birds near Silver Lake, in the Homewood district. Police said the shooting was accidental.

2 Killed 3 Hurt In Boat Blast

NT DAY

f Its Kind in America

Days and nights--- and many of both---have been spent literally combing the entire store --- basement to roof—"spotting" every single item in the establishment that should be cleared out ---regardless of cause---age, color, or too large stock---odd, mussed, etc. --- every item fixed with a red ink price (Red Ink Prices are used only on Remnant Days)---a price that positively assures the sale of that item. That explains why Remnant Days here are so famous.

WE NOW PRESENT
By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor

President Herbert Hoover, Calvin Coolidge and Governor Alfred E. Smith are to speak for the Red Cross tonight over KDKA, WCAE and WJAS, Pittsburgh's entire program period to the effort to raise $10,000,000 for relief work in the drought-stricken areas.

Amos 'n' Andy, Mark Twain, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Will Rogers, Miss Ethel Barrymore, Mrs. August Belmont, Vincent Lopez' orchestra, Andre Kostelanetz, Nathaniel Shilkret and Graham McNamee are scheduled to participate.

Knute Rockne, Connie Mack, Jim Londos and Bobby Jones are some of the celebrities to be heard from Pittsburgh at 7:30 P. M., special WJAS broadcast.

Pennsylvania is 29 per cent under quota in its broadcast station assignments the Federal Radio Commission announced last night. Other states under quota in the Second Zone are West Virginia, 27 per cent, and Ohio 3 per cent.

The Commission also considered its action on WMBI at Wilkinsburg. The outcome is believed in the balance pending a hearing this month.

Rather surprising is the information from New York that the networks devoted two-thirds of their time last year to sustaining programs.

Estelle Taylor, Jack's wife, Richard Dix and Floyd Gibbons are booked for the Theater of the Air on WCAE tomorrow night.

That French star whose name sounds like an automobile took radio "in high" last night. We enjoyed Maurice Chevalier as much as Harry Lauder and in truth the two have much in common as radio entertainers.

John S. Young who particularly careful not to mention the word nonchalant" ad for competitive cigaret company.

Maurice was best in "My Ideal" and "It's a Great Life" the latter done without censorship by NBC officials.

Immediately after the concert Chevalier signed a $200,000 contract for 26 Sunday night broadcasts with Dave Bidwell on the WEAF-WCAE hookup. For three songs and a short sketch each appearance Maurice is to receive the small sum of $3,846.15. Oh to start life as a carpenter's helper!

Helen Reese, McKeesport — Tom Gerun plays on WBBM-WABC at 11 o'clock tonight.

Bill Jones and Ernie Hare top the entertainment list of the Grotto show, "A Day in a Radio Studio," at Syria Mosque on Wednesday and Thursday, February 18 and 19.

FREE: Tetra Refill Toothbrush, 75c value, with your name or initials on the handle....
Just listen to BARBASOL BEN and his Barber Shop Quartette TONIGHT and every Monday and Thursday night, Station WJAS, at 8:15, and you'll learn how to get YOUR FREE Tetra Refill Toothbrush.

Oil and Grease CAN'T do the Job Alone

Do these things, too—or have a good mechanic do them for you.

1. Check cooling system thoroughly and keep radiator filled with proper anti-freeze preparation.
2. Have your carburetor adjusted for colder weather conditions.
3. Check and clean fuel lines and make sure oil is reaching all points that it should.
4. Check ignition system throughout—and have charging rate set up to meet increased drain on battery during short winter days.
5. Have battery inspected—and be sure it is kept in first class condition during the time you'll put it to its hardest service.
6. Have brakes checked, tightened and equalized to avoid skidding on frozen streets and icy roads.

There's a lot you can do about the Weather

In spite of the wise-cracks as to nobody doing anything about the weather—there's something you can and should do.

For the good of your car, do something about the weather—and do it quickly! Don't be too sure of yourself because everything's been all right so far. The cold months still ahead will produce many a spell of way-below-freezing weather—but cold days and zero nights will have no terrors for the car that's properly prepared.

Here's what you should do---

See that you have the proper grade of Amoco Motor Oil in your crankcase. At any garage or filling station where Amoco Motor Oil is sold a chart is available showing just the proper grade of oil for your particular car. Have your oil changed now—and don't make your starter battle against an unfair handicap on freezing days.

Change to the right grade of Amoco Transmission Oil

Gears should shift as easily in winter as they do in summer. There is no need for two-handed pulling if you have the right lubrication in transmission and differential. Using summer grades of oil and grease means loss of power—loss of acceleration—and puts a severe strain on every part of your motor and transmission.

Give a thought to Springs—Body—Chassis

Chilly weather always brings out squeaks that keep modestly quiet in the summer-time. When you have your motor and transmission properly lubricated for winter driving—have your springs sprayed and spring shackles and other chassis points greased. And then you're all set to laugh at the weather-man!

The AMERICAN OIL COMPANY
Pittsburgh Division Offices:
Clark Building: Pittsburgh, Pa.

And in the tank— AMOCO-GAS for quicker starting—less crankcase dilution—better winter performance

WORK TO START ON POLICE RADIO

Work will begin tomorrow on a temporary broadcasting station in the Mt. Washington station preparatory to testing the sending of messages to police cars equipped with receivers.

The plan was authorized by Council, which provided $22,000 in the 1931 budget for modern means of apprehending criminals.

French Immortalize Petain, Verdun Hero

PARIS, Jan. 22 (AP)—Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, defender of Verdun, today became one of the French "immortals" by election to the French Academy, succeeding Marshal Foch.

New Australian Governor Sworn

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 22 (AP)—Sir Isaac Isaacs, Australia's first native-born governor general, was sworn in today.

2 BOY ROBBERS SENTENCED

After pleading guilty to the attempted robbery of the Bakerstown general store and postoffice January 6, Rowland Fleming and Merle Teare were sentenced to the reformatory at Huntington today by Judge George V. Moore.

The youths were arrested by state police near Franklin shortly after the attempted robbery.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—The presidential race has begun on the microphones. Entries are feeling out their audiences, learning the response of the armchairs to their radio personalities as well as to their opinions of governmental problems.

Ritchie, of Marvland, is the first to the loudspeakers with views upon national politics. He can count his experience as time well spent, for his discourse formed a topic for editorials throughout the country.

Pinchot joined the procession Tuesday and we have a hunch he will shortly be followed by Roosevelt and Robinson and Reed, of Missouri. And unless we have lost all our skill as a crystal-gazer, Hoover will be more active this year on the radio than ever before.

If the general staffs of the old parties are genuinely alert to the publicity value of the microphone they are already grooming their best voices for the Battle of 1932. Hoover, certainly, will have the advantage of expertly-trained radio assistance. His cabinet members are heard every day of the year. Many of them have become so proficient on the air that they talk without benefit of manuscript.

* * *

The best campaign speeches in the past have been those in which manuscripts have been checked with the black fedoras, and the orators have talked right out in meeting, resisting any and all temptation to pull their punches. Frankness on the air is a rare virtue, but its practice invariably holds the eardrums.

On of the most novel programs to be transmitted across the Atlantic was the broadcast of the Ceremony of the Keys in the Tower of London. It was a relief to hear for a change the tramp of marching feet, the bellowing of commands, the fife-blowing of "God Save the King." There ought to be time between speeches for other traditional ceremonies of London—the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace, the journey of the King to Parliament.

* * *

Of the unsung heroes of radio, there is none who tastes the sweetness of acclaim less frequently than the professional accompanist. The virtuoso of the hour is introduced with considerable pomp and no little ceremony, while the accompanist at his piano is unhonored as inconspicuous as a stenographer at a board meeting.

The PLUS in Philco's New Superheterodyne-Plus

11-Tube Power—More than the average owner needs; but wonderful to reach out and bring in the program YOU want.

Automatic Volume Control—Making this great power USEFUL by holding the reception at constant level without fading.

Tone-Control—4 qualities of tone, "Brilliant," "Bright," "Mellow," "Deep"—whichever YOU like, at a touch of the finger.

Superheterodyne Selectivity—Combined with the sensitivity of screen grid tubes, recognized as the most perfect circuit known.

NEVER before such a radio as this! . . . Combining the exclusive Philco balanced-unit Screen Grid circuit with the superheterodyne, to do things no other receiver can do.

The enormous power of this 11-tube receiver will bring you programs you have never heard before. Automatic Volume Control holds programs, near and far, without fading. Screen Grid power and superheterodyne selectivity give you perfect reception and sharp, unblurred tuning, anywhere on the dial.

And in addition, this is the surest, most accurate tuning set in the world—because of the glowing arrow indicator on the Station Recording Dial. Simply log your stations on the dial and then, ever afterwards, you tune in these stations with perfect accuracy simply by bringing the call letters exactly under the glowing arrow.

Tone Control gives you still another delight by providing four shades of tone quality at a touch of your finger. And, due to Balanced Units, the life-like reproduction is breath-taking. You have never heard a radio like this.

PHILCO . THE LARGEST SELLING RADIO

This has been the crucial year for the radio industry. Only those offering real quality plus real value have received the approval—and patronage—of the American public. Most significantly, it is the year in which Philco has become the leader of the industry because its radio performance and value have been pre-eminent.

Amazingly Popular BABY GRAND

Not until [illegible] Andy Bervent quit the [illegible] business in Pittsburgh did he meet his Waterloo, he declared today. Charged [illegible] he must pay to John Wolfe all the profit he has made on the last [illegible] sales, according to [illegible] Baker, assistant district attorney, in Common Pleas Court. Mrs. Elsie Kappel, of New York, and the Rev. Wm. B. [illegible] of Philadelphia. A. B. Clarke, Westfield, in 1926, according to [illegible] charge, to sundry business [illegible] stocks.

At the afternoon session Dr. [illegible] will hold a conference on the Baptist community [illegible] which will be carried on in Negro churches in the Pittsburgh area. [illegible] $400,000 [illegible] Expenses total $200,000 [illegible] sides.

BAPTISTS MEET TOMORROW

The mid-winter session of the Pittsburgh Baptist Association will be held in the Sunnyside Baptist Church tomorrow. Speakers will be the Rev. D. [illegible] Baker, missionary at Ongole, India; Miss Elsie Kappel, of New York, and the Rev. Wm. B. [illegible] of Philadelphia. A. B. Clarke, Westfield, will preside at the [illegible] sessions.

2 Business Blocks At Westfield Burn

WESTFIELD, Pa., Jan. 22 (AP).—Lack of water and a brisk wind hampered firemen in subduing [illegible] fire which destroyed two two-story business blocks here and seriously damaged three others. The water supply was soon exhausted and the supply of chemicals inadequate. Aid was called from five nearby communities.

MUSIC
Raisa and Rimini
SYRIA MOSQUE

The Pittsburgh Chapter of Hadassah presented Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini in recital at Syria Mosque last night. These singers are prominent members of the Chicago Opera and sang a program of mainly arias and duets taken from their dramatic repertory.

The concert was planned in a popular vein; consequently we cannot take last night's singing too seriously from an artistic standpoint a generous number of encores adding to the pleasure of the patrons. Tosti's "Good-bye" was among the extras.

Raisa's voice is a powerful organ and belongs by right to the opera where the accoutrements of the stage are her great asset. Her last "Aida" in Pittsburgh is a glorious memory, and only in the air from Tschaikowsky's "Pique Dame" did she approach the finish of that performance.

Rimini's singing has somewhat improved in the last years, and he was at his best in the duets from "Don Pasquale" and "Il Trovatore." J. FRED LISSFELT.

Cameron to Sell Assets of Trust Co.

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 22.—Peter G. Cameron, state banking commissioner, has been granted permission to sell $70,000 worth of stocks and bonds of the defunct Brownsville Trust Company.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle, then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine yet it is much more effective. It is pure. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps naturally to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agents of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

RE-TEST OF CAR DRIVERS URGED

Examinations for all automobile drivers in the state at least once every two years and year tests for drivers who have ever been convicted of motor code violations is sought by the Pittsburgh Motor Club. Robert L. Wickline, chairman of the club's highway safety committee, said today. He has asked the legislative committee to take up the possibilities of securing these changes in drivers' license laws at the present session of the Pennsylvania Legislature. During the last few months several prominent public officials, including Motor Vehicle Commissioner Benjamin G. Eyon, have declared they favor a more frequent driver's examination than is now provided.

"LEARN THE HEALTH SECRET OF FLAXOLYN"

Advises Pittsburgh Physician, Who Predicts a New Zest in Living for Flaxolyn Users.

Dr. J. A. Donnelly (M.D.), Pittsburgh physician of vast experience, when retained to give his expert opinion of Flaxolyn, stated: "I am extremely well pleased with the action of Flaxolyn upon the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels."

Dr. Donnelly says: "I am convinced that a vast number of ailing men and women will find a new zest in living, from the use of Flaxolyn. Many common weaknesses and sicknesses can be traced to troubles of elimination—and Dr. Luntz is to be congratulated on the presentation of such a genuinely beneficial group of herbal ingredients to stimulate the appetite, bring peaceful comfort, and encourage healthy functions of bodily wastes from the bowels and kidneys—all without drastic things.

"Improved action is natural," says Dr. Donnelly—"the result is a basic break of the hell-and-chain of low vitality. Flaxolyn is truly the beginning of More Vigorous Health. The world will be a healthier world to live in when more people learn the Flaxolyn secret."

Positive Guarantee

You have read the wonderful statement by Dr. Donnelly. Now get and take Flaxolyn yourself. You do not risk a penny. Unless Flaxolyn does you good to the sixth power of spontaneous joy, return the partly used bottle and your money will be refunded right back to you by return mail. Certainly is an honest offer.

STATE ACTS FOR PURE WATER HERE

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Plarr

Short story: This was to be the first such event in the family and the young wife anticipated it with excitement and some nervousness.

For days beforehand she knitted and sewed and most of her attention was centered about a pair of tiny shoes she was making herself. These were to be silk shoes, the finest—pink crepe de chine, neat French knots in the front and two buttons covered with silk. It was difficult, sewing these shoes because the stitches had to be small, and she had never before sewed a pair. Each day she spent a half hour on them and gradually they took shape. She thought they were the finest pair of baby's shoes ever made. When she went to the hospital she was anxious to return to slip the shoes on the newcomer.

And when she returned, in two weeks, she took the shoes eagerly and prepared to put them on. Then the tragedy occurred.

The shoes didn't fit—they were much too small.

Roy Jansen, who recalls Kin Hubbard's report that the Business Men's Club'd hold its annual business meeting if it could find a good oriental dancer, owns a letter from the late great humorist. When Jansen was collecting opinions of Pittsburgh from notables a few years ago he asked Hubbard's. And Kin replied:

"Whenever I hear Pittsburgh mentioned I immediately think of steel. Mary

Police Lieut. Bill Walsh suggests that paymasters who fear holdup men might heed methods used 20 years ago by John Kenny, then paymaster of the Eagle Transfer Company in First avenue. The district was not a rendezvous for society people, so Mr. Kenny, as he prepared to pay 150 drivers weekly, would fire five shots into the roof of the transfer building just as announcement to outside loiterers that he was amply armed. The roof was, as you may have guessed, a sight.

Col. C. C. (Buck) McGovern can tell you about Private Pickwic, a little soldier who was known as Kid Electricity because his body seemed abnormally charged with that power. Pickwic had been a violinist when patriotism inspired him to enlist as a cavalryman at Mt. Gretna.

During training the men soon discovered that Pickwic was so charged with electricity that every horse he mounted immediately became tense, and bolted at Pickwic's slightest move.

One day Col. McGovern's crack outfit was drawn up before the reviewing stand preparatory to saluting visiting officers of importance. Pickwic's comrades had advised him not to draw his steel saber in salute lest he encourage animal mutiny.

The colonel gave the command to salute. Pickwic, hidden in the rear ranks, ignored the command, but an eagle-eyed lieutenant spotted him and barked the order over.

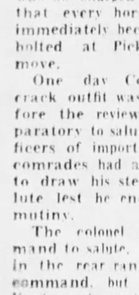
Pickwic fumbled for his saber, yanked it from its case and waved it aloft. The horse took the cue and dashed wildly through the ranks. They found Pickwic, three miles distant, stretched on the earth, saber aloft.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Frank Hawks, Casey Jones and I flew in here from New York, went up to the "opera comique" and heard the cast argue in both houses. Senator Thomas from our great old state of Oklahoma was trying to get a little appropriation for the Indians.



Vice President Curtis and I were the only two applauded. It's tough to get help for even the little white brothers, much less us Injuns. The lower House was arguing over the soldiers' bonus, whether to give them some aid now, or get 'em another war.

Had lunch with Al Smith in New York at the Democratic Club. The Republican Club is on same street half block away, and a speakeasy opened between the two. Talk about a location.

Yours, WILL.

Delayed by Lack of Machine Guns, Pershing Reveals

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING,

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

CHAPTER XI.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

In the organization of our armies for the World War it was evident that if any considerable numbers were to be sent abroad an additional force would be needed over and above the Regular Army and the National Guard.

The War Department therefore established what was called the National Army, to be composed principally of men who were to come into service through the draft. Most of the divisions of the National Army were organized in August and September, 1917.

As the time approached to begin the training of the smaller units it was found that after equipping the special troops urgently needed in France there was little equipment left even for the additional men required to fill up the National Guard.

Gen. Pershing

Unfortunately this made it necessary to delay calling out men for the units of the National Army. However, considerable numbers were called into service and proceeded with preliminary instruction, but the lack of equipment seriously delayed their progress.

The development of the machine gun as an infantry weapon, following the experience of the Russo-Japanese War, had been carried to a high degree of perfection, especially in the German army, where its value was more fully appreciated than among the Allies.

Faced Handicap

In this, as in every other line of preparation, we were far behind all others. The question of adopting types of machine guns and automatic rifles for our Army had been discussed at home for years, and test after test had been made, but the nearest approach to a decision was an acrimonious discussion in and out of the press between the Ordnance Department and certain inventors, with the result that when we entered the war no definite conclusion had been reached that would warrant the manufacture of machine guns in quantity, and we were without the advantage of having made a start. Not only were we without machine guns, but our organization tables did not anticipate their use in anything like the numbers provided for by the enemy.

To equip our earlier divisions, especially in view of the possibility of an emergency requiring our early entry into the line, arrangements were made to purchase Hotchkiss machine guns and Chauchat automatics from the French. But on account of delay in deliveries, the instruction of our troops in the use of these weapons was necessarily slowed down considerably. Notwithstanding these handicaps, our machine gun instruction reached a high degree of efficiency, and the most modern conception of the use of this weapon was taught in our schools.

Production Slow

At this time the production of the Vickers machine gun was proceeding slowly. With the adoption of the Browning, following the tests in May, both the heavy for ground work and the light as an automatic rifle, their manufacture was begun, although none became available for use in battle until September, 1918. The Lewis machine gun, about which there had been so much controversy involving the Ordnance Department and the inventor, was not considered suitable as an automatic rifle but was recommended for airplanes.

Our earlier divisions were seriously handicapped in their preparation at home for lack of machine guns for training. When it is recalled that each division at the beginning of the war was allowed only 92 machine guns and no automatic rifles, and that under our war organization over 260 machine guns and 768 automatic rifles were required, the result of delay in providing these guns needs no further comment.

My diary notes the following:

Paris, Tuesday,
August 21, 1917.

Visited billeting areas of 47th French and our 1st Division with Gen. Petain on Sunday.

Inspected St. Dizier Regulating Station and witnessed French attack near Verdun yesterday. Visited French hospital at Souilly.

Returned this morning with M. Painleve, minister of war, on his train.

As I had accepted Gen. Petain's invitation to see the French offensive that was to take place on August 20, I motored to French General Headquarters on the 18th, accompanied by Col. Palmer and Capt. Boyd, and after dinner left with Gen. Petain and two or three members of his staff on his train for an inspection of French and American troops the following day.

Recalls Humor

We reached Gondrecourt the next morning and began the day with a review of the French 47th Infantry Division, which was paraded on a prominent plateau near Houdelaincourt.

This division had been in every serious engagement of the war and its losses had been very heavy, as

JERRY, 19, AND CLARA, 16, ALL MADE UP AND BACK AT HOME

Back home and happy—all because Assistant District Attorney Barney Cohen brought them together, heard them agree the trouble was "in-laws," had the case cancelled, sent them back home with a $10 bill to aid them and advice to do without the "in-laws."

LAWYER FACES FRAUD TRIAL

Attorney William L. Milburn, 1504 Grant Building, is at Liberty in $3,500 bail pending trial in Criminal Court on a charge of fraudulent conversion. He was indicted by the grand jury January 15 after having been held by Alderman T. A. Flanigan.

Charges against Milburn were made by Michael Danko and his wife, Mary, 906 First street, McKees Rocks. They alleged that December 17, 1929, they gave Milburn $7,000 toward payment for a house and that he used $2,700 of that sum for himself.

PAIR, 16 AND 19, RECONCILED

The Gebhardts, Clara, 16 and Jerry, 19, bridal pair of eight months who appeared in Desertion and Non-Support Court yesterday, decided to "bury the hatchet" and start anew with the help of a $10 bill given them by Assistant District Attorney Barney Cohen, attorney for Mrs. Gebhardt.

They have been separated since January 3. Mrs. Lyda Martin, 915 Sandusky street, Clara's mother, said:

"They were just a couple of kids who were broke and had nothing to do but quarrel. Everybody has spats now and then. They'll be all right now."

Mrs. Gebhardt, perched on her husband's knee, said:

"Everything is straightened out now and we are very happy."

Mr. Gebhardt is employed by the Dixon Motor Company.

Old St. Patrick's Chapel Robbed of Food for Needy

Two armed bandits held up Jack Wise in his haberdashery at 407 East Ohio street, stole $12 from the cash register and a watch valued at $25 from Wise last night. They escaped in an automobile.

Canned goods and vegetables valued at $25 were stolen from the basement of St. Patrick's Chapel at Penn avenue and Fourteenth street, according to a police report. The food was to have been given the unemployed.

A few hours before a bandit pair broke into a house in the rear of 522 Madison avenue, aroused John Nevacheck from sleep to tell where he hid his money. They obtained $4.50 and a watch valued at $25, police said.

Thieves last night jimmied the rear door of the home of Philip Franco at 1228 Clark street and stole $350 from a dresser drawer, according to police.

Mrs. Martha Scary, of 819 Lockhart street, was robbed of $5 and two bank books by a man who snatched her purse while she was walking in Pressley street, near Moravian street, last night.

Thieves who shattered a window in the American Oil Company service station at 13 West Montgomery avenue, North Side, this morning, are believed to have been frightened away before they could obtain any loot. The window was discovered broken by a policeman patrolling his beat. Nothing had been taken, attendants at the station said.

Ten hams, valued at $20, were stolen from the butcher shop of L. DeLuca at 23 Carver street during the night. DeLuca reported to police today. A thief shattered the store window with a brick and removed the hams from the window.

Perry High Picks Singers for Chorus

Perry High School has selected Elizabeth Hughes, Jack Jones and Miriam Wirth to sing in the national high school chorus at the annual convention of the department of superintendence, National Education Association, in Detroit, February 21 to 26. The chorus consists of 400 voices chosen by public school music supervisors.

Brother, 2 Sisters Left $18,500 Estate

Robert Mitchell, 914 Brushton avenue, by his will filed for probate today, leaves $18,500 to his brother John, who is executor, and his two sisters, Mathilda M. Moxon and Lilly M. Moxon.

PLAN CHECK ON DRAINAGE FROM DAM

Objectionable Taste, Color Of City Supply Traced to Source in Clarion River

Future drainage work at Piney Creek dam on the Clarion River, blamed for the bad taste and discoloration of Pittsburgh's water, will be done under supervision of an official of the State Health Department, Charles M. Reppert, chief engineer of the city Public Works Department, said today.

The Clarion River, a tributary of the Allegheny from which the city receives its water, has been contaminated for several months by surface discharges and fungus, it was said, from the low Piney Creek dam of the Associated Gas and Electric Company. The foreign elements gave the water an objectionable taste and color. The discoloration at its worst in mid-December, has been lessening slowly.

AGREE ON ACTION

At a conference between officials of the gas and electric company and representatives of the State Health Department, it was agreed the dam water released into the stream caused the bad taste, and that future drainage would be supervised by the department.

Company officials said they had been unaware that the dam was causing trouble until so informed by health authorities.

South Hills residents, served by the South Pittsburgh Water Company, have been spared the difficulty, Reppert pointed out, as the company's supply comes from the Monongahela River.

"FLU" THEORY DENIED

Although the prevalence of intestinal influenza here has been attributed to the water supply, Dr. C. B. Maits, city health director, has dissipated this theory after extensive analysis of the supply, he said today.

He has found no ill effects from the condition of the water, he asserted.

Lieut. Lavery's Auto Stolen From Station

Police Lieut. William J. Lavery of the Squirrel Hill Police Station discovered this morning that his automobile had been stolen from in front of the police station. The car disappeared shortly before 3 o'clock while the lieutenant was reading over his reports in the station house.

200 ENGINEERS ATTEND MEET

Two hundred electrical engineers from Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia attended two conferences here yesterday at which time electrical heating and welding was discussed. The conference was sponsored by Pennsylvania State College and the Association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineers.

Frank Cramer, of Youngstown, presided at the morning session and William Young, of State College, presided in the afternoon. The speakers were A. N. Otis, of Schenectady; Charles Knight, New York; Grover A. Hughes, Youngstown; H. H. Walther, Dayton; Dr. E. F. Northrup, Trenton, N. J.; Charles H. Jennings, East Pittsburgh; George S. Rose, New York, and I. T. Hook, Waterbury, Conn.

New Zinc Smelter Employs 100 Men

With a weekly capacity of more than 800 tons of ore used in the manufacture of zinc oxide and metallic zinc, the new smelter of the St. Joseph Lead Company near Monaca has given employment to approximately 100 men, officials said today. The venture marks the concern's first producing activities in Pennsylvania.

SIX FIREMEN PROMOTED

Six hosemen in the fire bureau were promoted to the rank of captain by Mayor Charles H. Kline, it was announced today by Fire Chief Richard L. Smith. Chief Smith also announced the appointment of three new pumpers and a driver. Seven subfiremen were given regular positions.

The new captains are Frederick Nettach, Philip Lauderdaugh, Nicholas J. Kraus, Sylvester M. Crawford, Charles Bailey and Albert Rochenstein. They will take the oath of office tomorrow in the office of Public Safety Director James M. Clark.

INJURED MAN'S BROTHER HELD

George Jopchak, 18, of 48 Acorn street, was arrested by city detectives late yesterday in connection with the shooting of his brother Michael, 22, in a poolroom at Fourth and Acorn streets, Greenfield, Tuesday.

George, police say, told them that he went home late yesterday to get $2 which he had hidden away to buy something to eat. Missing the money, he sought out Michael at the poolroom. Forcibly ejected by the brother, he returned home, he said, secured pistol and shot his brother in the left leg.

Scientist Uses Chemicals To Analyze Thoughts

A possibility of explaining the phenomena of human thought in terms of physical and chemical reactions is seen by Dr. N. Rashevsky, of the Westinghouse Research Laboratories. Dr. Rashevsky, noted Russian scientist, working out his theories in East Pittsburgh for some time, is preparing to start his experiments.

Dr. Rashevsky

The characteristic feature of intelligent behavior, Dr. Rashevsky says, is its dependence on the past experience of the individual. One behaves differently under like circumstances, according to knowledge gained in the past about these circumstances, Dr. Rashevsky says.

"It is a well-known fact in physics that the properties and reactions of some substances largely depend on the way they were treated previously. Two pieces of steel, of exactly similar chemical constitution, will, for instance, show different hardness, according to whether they have been previously annealed or quenched."

Such phenomena, where the past history influences the present state of a substance are known to physicists as "hysteresis." The idea that at least some of the phenomena characteristic of intelligent behavior may be explained as a special case of hysteresis has occurred to several biologists. A mathematical study has been made recently by Dr. Rashevsky and his formulae, he says, show that a number of facts studied by physiologists, in particular the so-called conditioned reflexes, can well be described mathematically and thus relieved of at least a part of their mystery.

SCOUT LEADER TELLS DUTIES OF PARENTS

COMPANIONSHIP HELD NEED OF YOUTH

Dr. James E. West, on Hoover Committee, Boys and Girls Better Behaved Than Ever

Parents must recognize the responsibility of companionship to their boys and girls, even though youth today is much better behaved than at any time, Dr. James E. West, of New York, chief scout executive of National Council, Boy Scouts of America, declared while here today for a series of meetings and the annual banquet tonight in the William Penn Hotel.

Dr. West, who is chairman of the White House committee on youth outside the home and school, emphasized youth is exposed to greater hazards than ever before, and through such organizations as the Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. lies responsibility with parents in the building of mind and character.

ADVICE FOR PARENTS

He said:

"Youth spends 40 per cent of its time outside the home and school. While scout interests can occupy the minds and activities in combatting selfishness and making youth thoughtful and considerate of others, the parents' attitude is the difficult problem. I believe boys and girls have a better chance when parents maintain better companionship."

MEETS WORKERS

Dr. West met with boy workers of the city during the morning at the Y. M. C. A. He met civic leaders and board members at luncheon in the William Penn Hotel.

The afternoon was being devoted to meeting Western Pennsylvania scout executives at Webster Hall. Dr. West was to be guest of honor at the Allegheny County Council-West annual meeting and dinner tonight.

REPLY PLANNED IN BUS FIGHT

Additional briefs to uphold their fight against the 25-cent bus fare charged by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company will be filed by the Allied Boards of Trade, Harry Bastow, president of the civic group, announced today. The briefs will be in answer to the company's charge that no municipalities were representing at the hearing before the Public Service Commission in Harrisburg Monday.

President Bastow points out that the Allied Boards of Trade are 47 affiliated bodies, having a membership of more than 16,000, in all parts of the county. There is no indication, acording to Bastow, when the commission would hand down a decision in the case, pending since 1928.

GRANDMOTHER'S VIENNA BREAD...

will help build your reputation as a HOSTESS

THE sandwiches you serve—and of course you serve sandwiches sometime—help to determine your reputation as a hostess. Since sandwiches are ninety per cent bread you want the very best bread to be had—and that's where Grandmother's Vienna loaf fits into the picture.

Speaking of sandwiches, here's one that will "go over" in a big way with your guests, it's called the Czecho-Slovakian sandwich, a zestful combination substantial enough for a luncheon or supper menu.

Serve this sandwich at your next gathering but serve Grandmother's Vienna loaf every day.

HERE'S HOW TO MAKE THE SANDWICH—

Cut generous slices of Grandmother's Vienna loaf, spread smoothly and evenly with creamed butter, and place each slice on a plate.

Then on each slice put a leaf of lettuce, next a slice of ham, then a spoonful of cabbage, chopped fine, salted, and mixed with salad dressing, next a sardine, an olive, and a pickle, sweet or sour, a slice of tomato on the outer, and last a slice of hard cooked egg on the tomato. A spoonful of mayonnaise may be added wherever there is space.

This is a very colorful sandwich and may be varied by the addition of tongue, bologna, luncheon, chicken, deviled meats—or even pickled beets, cucumbers—any combination of which an inventive hostess can think.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Old Man Trouble Knocked Out by Spunk

Feeling low?

Discouraged?

Sure that if you just didn't have so much trouble you could get along and be happy, and amount to something like the Folks Next Door?

Yeah? I thought so!

But did you ever stop to wonder how much trouble the folks next door licked to get where they are?

Chances are you didn't. Chances are you've been too busy moaning about your own Hard Lot, and how it's knocked you haywire, to ever think of that picture.

Well, here's your chance. Here's the story of just such a fight. The story of what spunk's done to Old Man Trouble. And if it doesn't put a tear in your eye and hope in your heart, then I'm no guesser! Read it and salute courage! Salute Real Folks!

A Happy Marriage

Dear Sally:

I've just been reading Alice's story of her happy marriage, and I was so glad to see it. You hear so much crabbing about marriages these days that it's a relief to read a story of real happiness. Good luck to Alice! And lots of it! I suppose I ought to wish some of these "marriage crabs" good luck too, even if they do make me a little weary. I guess they mean well.

I want to say that my marriage is happy, too. A howling success, in fact. Not that we haven't had plenty of hardship and trouble. We have. But we haven't minded it so much, because we've had each other.

I might start by saying that we're not wealthy. Far from it. But we're oh, so happy, even if I was married at 17. My husband was 20. The very first year, our baby came—and Daddy lost his job. Then I had to have an operation. After that I wanted to work, and we opened a business. It failed shortly after we started it. Then baby died. And we were blessed again with a little one. Since then I've had two more operations and another darling baby.

Doing Well Now

I'm telling all this, so some "crabs" can see that we're not happy just because life has been a bed of roses for us. It hasn't. And they won't have a chance to say that I have no reason for sorrow. I have had plenty. But I didn't let that stop me.

We have been married seven years now, and we have a son three years old and a daughter one and a half. We have our little home in the suburbs. We have lots of debts, and little money, but just oodles of happiness, in spite of that.

My husband says he loves me more as the days pass, and I can assure you that the feeling is mutual. He is so sweet to me and I try to be to him. We share things.

Our home is comfortable, if not gaudy, and we have a small car and, last but not least, we have two of the most wonderful youngsters in the world to keep us interested and alive—at least we think they're wonderful. Their Daddy makes them respect me, and I make them respect and love their Daddy. Neither of us is by any means perfect, but we don't hold grudges and we try to get along.

My husband's friends are always welcome in our home, and so are mine. He belongs to a bowling league, and we go to a good show once in a while. We also have lots of good friends whom we visit and who visit us.

Now, Sally, with all that, wouldn't you call our life just about perfect? I do!

Happiness Increasing

It may be terrible to some people to not have much money, but honestly, we get a great kick out of saving for some piece of furniture that we want. . . Lots more than if we could just step out and grab it without stopping to think.

And slowly, but surely, our little home is growing into a little "Dream House," in spite of misfortune, and not much money.

Don't you think that life is really just full of happiness, if we just keep our eyes up and look for the sun, instead of mooning around in the mud and crabbing about it? I do. And I'm not Pollyanna, either.

I'll say goodby now. And I'm going to hold good thoughts for all the couples who can't make a "go" of it. Here's wishing them luck and happiness, the same as we have found.

DORA.

A very happy wife and mother.

Bravo, Dora! That was a great letter! I wish I could reach out my hand to you across the distance that separates us, instead of trying to tell you in cold type how it touched me and bucked up my faith in Us Humans.

Here's wishing you luck, my dear, and lots of it! And here's a big hug for those blessed babies!

Household Hints

Have some sort of identification in the child's rubbers and galoshes so they are not exchanged at school for others much the worse for wear. If the lining is light in color the child's name may be printed inside in India ink. If dark, the name may be printed on adhesive tape and the tape pasted inside the overshoes.

When painting window frames, rub a little petroleum jelly on the glass. Paint will then easily be removed where it has smeared the glass.

No Failure Is So Great as That of Neglectful Parents, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

The fight that divorced parents make for their child seems to me an ill-timed and belated concern in that child's welfare.

No young is so helpless and so dependent for so long upon the care and love and guidance of parents as human young.

It is 10 years before a child begins to be able to care for itself a little.

There is no responsibility on earth greater than properly rearing a child.

The humblest home may be richer in the love and character which means more than anything else to a child's future.

The world could get along nicely without geniuses and glamorous careers, but never without good parents and good homes.

No failure is so great as that of neglectful parents.

Continuation of Love's Awakening

Veritzen Attempts to Embrace Madge

Mr. Veritzen was at the door, his hand upon the knob, before I found the excuse to detain him for which I had been searching my brain. I was determined that he should not walk into the corridor from our apartment at that early hour unless Dicky were at the door to usher him out. And, though I was sure that Dicky was wide awake and waiting for the ring of the bell in the room next his which I just had given with my foot upon an invisible push button, yet it would take a minute or two before he reached the room. My employer would be gone before my husband appeared.

"May I make a bargain with you?" I asked softly.

He swung around, facing me, and the heaviness of his face lifted ever so slightly.

"I am always at your service, you know that," he said with an emphasis that was disconcerting. I wondered if Dicky were already within hearing of our colloquy.

"Thank you," I answered. "It is simply this: I am very anxious that nothing shall mar our Christmas festivities. I am making a great effort to give all our young people a good time. It would grieve me very much if anything spoiled my plans. If you will agree to say nothing upsetting to Noel or Mary until after the holidays I will do my best afterward to get the letters back for you, and that without asking either of them directly for the return."

I felt miserably Machiavellian as I made the promise, knowing that what I really was planning after the holidays was an appeal to him to cease his persecution of the young lovers.

The next second I was shorn of all regret or sense of shame at tricking him. Without realizing it, I saw something predatory, feral, leap into his eyes. Too late I remembered Harry Underwood's half burlesqued warning to me, repeated more than once: "Lady Fair, don't look up at a man with your eyes like that unless you expect to be kissed." I took a step backward, but Mr. Veritzen put his hands firmly but gently upon my shoulders and drew me toward him.

"Don't you know?" he murmured, bending his head to mine, "that I can deny no request of yours?"

I wrenched myself free and sprang backward, a split second before Dicky opened the door between the living room and the hall. I did not see him, for my back was toward the door, but my employer was facing it, and I saw him change to poised wariness on the instant.

How much had Dicky heard or seen? This was the query which racked me even as my husband's lazy, drawling voice, which told nothing, framed a greeting.

"Good morning, Mr. Veritzen. Excuse me for coming in like this, Madge." He indicated his sketchy costume with an airy wave of the hand. "But I thought I smelled coffee."

"You do." I told him, grimly marshaling my own self-possession. "I made a cup for myself a little while ago. But it will take only five minutes to prepare some more. Won't you join us, Mr. Veritzen, or don't you share our weakness for coffee at all hours?"

My employer smiled urbanely and bowed from the waist.

"I already have had two cups," he said, "and so, as I am in great haste, I really must decline your tempting offer. But I'm going to hold you to your bargain concerning the young people. I will preserve a strictly neutral attitude during the holidays, and I shall then expect your aid in the matter of which I spoke. Good morning! I'm sorry I can't share your coffee."

He turned to the door, and Dicky, unobtrusively, without apparent effort, was at his side, opening the door for him and stepping into the hall with him. When he came back he walked over to me and stood looking down at me steadily, his lips curving in a sardonic smile.

"Well, old dear," he said at last, "was there anything the matter with my rendition of the role of careful chaperon?" I even escorted the gentleman to the corridor, exhibiting my slippered feet and my wrinkled bathrobe to the interested gaze of the chambermaids. And my farewell was extra cordial."

There was something repressed, leashed in his voice that made me uneasy. But I ignored it and answered his query.

"You were splendid. Thank you so much."

"All right. That's that. And now," his voice was suddenly changed, icy, with almost a note of menace in it, "will you kindly tell me just why in the seven hinges of the hot place that old goat was kissing you just now?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Guard Baby From the "Catching" Diseases.

Great care must be taken to guard the baby from the germs of the contagious, or "catching" diseases. It is a very easy matter to pass on to a young child the germs of diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough or any other of the contagious diseases. They may come from one who has the disease, or from one who habitually spreads the germs, a so-called "carrier."

Dr. Copeland

Every precaution should be taken to protect the baby from contact with the discharges from the nose and throat of another member of the family. It should be guarded against those who are coughing and sneezing. Kissing the child should be forbidden.

There are certain symptoms of sickness in a baby that every mother should be on the lookout for at all times. This is particularly true in the winter months, when the contagious diseases are most prevalent.

After a baby has been near someone who has had scarlet fever, diphtheria or whooping cough, or other disease, the following symptoms may occur:

In scarlet fever there is sudden sickness within five or ten days after exposure. Vomiting, a red, sore throat, high fever and hot, dry skin, together with chills are not uncommon. After a day or two come small, bright red spots, close together, on the skin, and cover most of the body.

Whooping cough must be considered a serious ailment. From a week to two weeks after exposure there is illness which slowly increases. There is a slight cold, a running nose and a hard and dry cough. This turns to a choking cough and ends in a wheezing, sharp sound, the familiar "whoop" that most everyone has heard. When it occurs the child's face becomes violently red, and he gasps for breath. Whooping is a long drawn out and wearing out process.

Diphtheria is a disease that once was looked upon as a scourge, and took a terrible toll of life. It is fast being wiped out, but every fall and winter many cases are reported. In this disease there is a slowly increasing illness from two to eight days after the child is exposed to it. There is listlessness, fussiness and loss of appetite. The child cries with the sore throat. There are fever, a discharge from the nose and hoarseness. After a while gray patches appear on both sides of the throat.

When there is the least sign of any of these symptoms a doctor should be called at once. If he is called immediately he may be able to abort or control the disease.

Every mother should have her children protected from some of the contagious diseases by the preventive treatment which the family doctor can apply. Such precautions may be the means of saving your child from one of these dread diseases.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, January 23

The sidereal operations in force on this day point to a rather routine state of affairs with the disposition either moplish or maladjusted. There may be a tendency to quickness and sharpness in speech which may mar the smooth running of workaday affairs, and personally, the inclination may be toward prudence, economy, aloofness or association with elders.

Those whose birthday it is may not expect a particularly lively or eventful year although much depends on rising above a tendency to mopishness, perversity and querulousness. A proclivity for sharp and clever speech may not have the effect of promoting happiness or progress. However, the leanings will be toward thrift and prudence and an association with elders who bring benefits.

A child born on this day may incline to thrift, frugality and quietly constructive habits. It may benefit through elders and through keeping a determined curb on a proclivity for quick and clever speech.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When brushing the hair, don't slap it down close to the scalp. Lift it up strand by strand and brush thoroughly, thus giving the glorious crown a thorough ventilation. Brush from the nape of the neck upward.

Normal healthy fingernails are pliable. When nails break easily they need the comforting solacement of a cuticle cream. Warm olive oil is good. Apply and cover each finger with a thimble-like arrangement of cotton.

Peroxide acts as a mild, safe bleach for the complexion that has taken on a mottled appearance. Apply at night with a pledget of absorbent cotton. Hot fermentations help the epidermis to send off its old materials and to show up the nice fresh new fabric of natural tone. When bleaching, go slow with oily applications, which retards the whitening process.

A pleasant face-pack that refines the skin is made by anointing the epidermis with a heavy cream, patting in almond meal and laying on towels which have been wrung out of hot water. Follow with an ice ironing and an astringent. Nice, fresh phiz will beam out from the looking glass.

Only the foolish woman will let herself go to seed. It is but a step from neglect to blowsiness. The fastidious girl who keeps to her daily beautifying schedule looks fresh and dainty. There should be the weekly manicure. Every night the anointing of the complexion with cold cream, with a few generous wallops over the neck and a buttering of the hands. Shampoos should be given every two weeks. If hair is oily a weekly shampoo is better. Properly done it acts as a stimulant to the blood streams and a tonic to the hirsute tiara.

After 40, Constipation is Most Dangerous

CONSTIPATION may easily become chronic after forty. Continued constipation at that time of life is productive of piles—and a host of other disorders.

Watch your bowels at any age. Guard them with particular care after forty. When they need help, a doctor knows what is best.

"Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," is a doctor's prescription for the bowels. Tested by 47 years' practice, it has been found thoroughly effective in relieving constipation and its ills for men, women and children of all ages. It has proven perfectly safe even for babies. Made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin, and other mild, harmless ingredients, it cannot gripe; will not sicken you or weaken you; can be used without harm as often as your breath is bad, your tongue is coated; whenever a headachy, bilious, gassy condition warns of constipation.

Next time, take a spoonful of this family doctor's laxative. See how good it tastes; how gently and thoroughly it acts. All drugstores.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Neglected Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Here is my predicament. I was cleaning my husband's pockets out to send his suit to the cleaners and in one pocket I found an invitation to the wedding of one of my dearest girl friends. The wedding took place about a week ago and what am I going to do? Of course I want to send her a gift, but how shall I go about it? I don't want her to know my husband was so forgetful.

CONSTANT READER.

And what a predicament this is! I believe that the only thing for you to do about this now is to send a present, with a note to her apologizing for being so late, and not mentioning the unhappy fate of the invitation. In other words, make your wedding gift so perfect in taste and choice, and your note so perfect in expression that her attention will be given to these lovelinesses and will be taken from the fact that the invitation met a sad fate. Then, too, as soon as you can make some social gesture that will assure her that your friendship for her is deep and most sincere. For instance, as soon as possible after her return from her wedding trip, invite her and her husband to dine with you and your husband. Make the party an "occasion," with your friendship and hospitality so evidently kind and high-hearted that there will not be a possibility of her misinterpretation of your love for her.

A Note of Invitation

1. Is it correct to send a little note to invite someone to an informal dinner party?

2. If so, will you kindly give me an idea of how this should read?

READER.

1. Yes, this is a perfect way to give your invitation.

2. Something like this (adapted, of course, to the degree of friendship that you have with the friend being invited):

Dear Mary:

It would make me so happy if you and Tom would dine with John and me on Saturday evening, February the first, at our home at 8 o'clock. Do say "yes." We are asking a few friends, all of whom you know and all of whom will not be happy if you do not come, and we are dining informally.

Dearest love from us both, and the high anticipation of seeing you both on the first.

Cordially yours,

HORTENSE.

The Preferred Monogram

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to put the initials of the bride's maiden name or the bridegroom's initials on the trousseau linens?

L.

There is a great difference of opinion on this question, the conventional, conservative people maintaining that the initials of the bride's maiden name should be used in embroidering the linens and in engraving the silver, and the radical "moderns" holding that the groom's initial should be added. The bride must make her own choice. But I am strongly in favor of the bride's using the initials of her maiden name. As a rule, I find, the bride of the best taste and the best sense of form follows this form. From time immemorial the linens and the silver have been supplied by the bride's family or relatives, and this form of monogram suggests this.

Referring to a Relative

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a person speaks of his or her aunt to a friend, is it proper to say "Aunt Carrie" or "my aunt" or are both correct?

H. S.

If the person to whom you are speaking knows your aunt, so that the first name identifies her, it would be reasonable to refer to your aunt as "Aunt Carrie." If not, "my aunt" would be the logical thing to say.

COMING BILLS LISTED FOR LOCAL SCREEN AND STAGE

Elmer Harris' comedy, "Young Sinners," comes to the Alvin next week, following its seven-month run on Broadway. Raymond Guion and Dorothy Appleby are prominent in the cast.

The nine Adlers, the wife and sons and daughters of the late Jacob P. Adler, dean of the Jewish stage in America, will present two performances of Jacob Gordin plays in the Nixon next week. Wednesday night they will offer "The Stranger," and Friday night, "Without a Home."

Edwin Vail is rehearsing three casts in "Apron Strings," the comedy which will hold the boards in the Pitt next week. The first cast is the regular company, which will appear in the play every evening at the Thursday and Saturday matinees. The other two casts are made up of drama students who will give special matinees on Wednesday and Friday.

NEW TIBBETT FILM

Prominently cast in support of Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore in "New Moon," the screen attraction coming to the Penn tomorrow, is Adolphe Menjou, former Pittsburgher, who, since his return from Europe, has been steadily forging his way to the front in "talkies" just as he had done with his suave performances in silent pictures.

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey come to the Stanley tomorrow in their latest comedy, "Hook, Line and Sinker." Dorothy Lee is heroine. Ed Lowry's stage show will be "On With the Dance."

"No Limit," Clara Bow's seventh talking picture, will open tomorrow in the Fulton and Sheridan Square theaters. Norman Foster, Harry Green, Stuart Erwin and Dixie Lee are in the cast.

RUBIN IN VAUDEVILLE

Benny Rubin, comedy star of "Remote Control" and "Montana Moon," headlines the vaudeville program coming to the Davis Saturday. The screen will have "Once a Sinner," with Dorothy Mackaill.

Walter Huston, Phillips Holmes, Constance Cummings and Boris Karloff have the leading roles in "The Criminal Code," current attraction on the Warner screen.

Dorothy Mackaill's first screen appearance since "The Office Wife," is in the starring role of "Once a Sinner," coming to the Enright tomorrow. Dick Powell will be on the stage in "Second Anniversary Revue."

"The Lion and the Lamb," brought to the screen from E. Phillips Oppenheim's serial, comes to the Harris screen Saturday. The stage will have a new vaudeville program.

Jeanette MacDonald and Reginald Denny are co-featured in "Oh, For A Man," the romance of a prima donna and a burglar, which comes to the Aldine tomorrow. Warren Hymer, Marjorie White and Albert Conti are in the cast.

SHE LOVED TO EAT BUT WAS ALWAYS PUNISHED FOR IT

Much of the suffering from so-called "indigestion" or acid-dyspepsia could be avoided if everyone could know what thousands like Miss Lillian Ralston have learned. This New York City business woman, who lives at 1160 Park Avenue, says:

"I suffered from headaches and heartburn after meals; couldn't sleep like I should; never felt right.

"For five years I experimented with medicines and treatments, until I learned about Pape's Diapepsin. I have used three packages now; have gained five pounds, and feel fine. I eat meats and anything I please. At the first sign of discomfort I chew a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and the trouble is gone in a minute."

If you, too, suffer from sourness, gas, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, or pain after eating—either regularly or just at times, get a box of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist. Then you need never worry again about what you eat. These tablets are like candy and just as harmless. If you would like to try them before buying, write Pape's Diapepsin, Wheeling, W. Va., and you will receive a sample box, FREE.

That Worn-Out Feeling May Be a Dangerous Sign

If you feel all worn out in the middle of the day, that's nature's warning. Heed it! Your system may be starved for vitamins! The modern diet simply doesn't supply enough of them.

To correct this condition doctors here are widely prescribing cod liver oil. But many people can't take it. The nasty taste nearly gags them. The oil upsets their stomachs. And so to these people we recommend McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets.

These amazing little tablets contain all the A and D vitamins and are equal in every respect to the liquid cod liver oil.

The Good Housekeeping Institute has tested these tablets and approved them. Leading doctors everywhere now prescribe them. If you would give your system the vitamins it needs—just go to your druggist and ask for a box of McCoy's.

Don't wait another minute. Get your box today. 60 tablets—60 cents.

TEETH WHITEN

3 Shades in 3 Days

HERE'S the quick, easy way to sound, sparkling white teeth and firm, pink gums—the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique.* Use it for just 3 days. . . . Then note the results.

Teeth look whiter—fully 3 shades. Gums feel firmer, they are healthier. And your mouth tingles with a refreshing, clean taste.

Kolynos cleans teeth and gums as they should be cleaned.

As soon as it enters the mouth this highly concentrated, antiseptic dental cream gives you a pleasant surprise. It becomes an exhilarating FOAM that is full of life. This FOAM gets into and cleans out every tiny crevice, pit and fissure. It quickly kills the millions of germs that cause offensive Bacterial-Mouth—that lead to tooth decay, stain, ugly yellow and to gum diseases. (Kolynos kills 190 million germs in 15 seconds).

Moreover, this FOAM keeps on working after you hang up your toothbrush. For 3 hours it continues to cleanse the teeth and purify the mouth.

That is why teeth are so easily and swiftly cleaned down to the beautiful, naked white enamel—without injury.

If you want whiter teeth free from decay, and firm, pink gums—discard the dentifrice that does only half the job. Switch to Kolynos. It will win you in 3 days. Get a tube from any druggist.

*It Saves Teeth . . Saves Money

The unique action of Kolynos permits the Dry-Brush Technique advocated by leading dentists as the way . . . to use a dental cream full strength . . . to keep the brush bristles stiff enough to clean every tooth surface and massage gums properly . . . Use a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, morning and night. Dental cream lasts longer. Teeth look cleaner and whiter. . . . Try this amazing Kolynos Technique.

Soccer As Training Aid — Likely to Help Pirates — Dempsey Rates Heavies. — Grove to Do Flinging — Cost Boxing Laws — Old Eight Recalled

VETS SEE SUCCESS FOR CORSAIR PLAN

THE DECISION OF M[illegible] to adopt soccer football as a training exercise for baseball players is bound to be of great benefit to the game. It was results of the extent to which the players had been benefited through kicking it, that the opinion was expressed that it might be good idea to make it one of the regular training stunts.

Deane Bush, the skipper of the Buccaneers, approved the suggestion and planned to include soccer among the Rovers' conditioning exercises in the spring of 1928, but gave it up as the last minute when he found the club's training equipment did not include the right kind of shoes for the purpose. Ens is going to take care that no such detail is overlooked this time. He is determined to give the kicking game a thorough trying out and the result of the experiment will be awaited with much interest by baseball men in all divisions of the organized sport.

Jewel Ens

THERE IS NO reason why the [illegible] not prove [illegible] advantage [illegible] Soccer is one of the finest [illegible] in the world, [illegible] the most enjoyable pastime [illegible] which are of just as great importance as throwing speed or batting eyes in the winning of baseball games.

The adoption of the sport as a baseball training exercise gets the hearty approval of experienced soccer players. The Cleveland Shamrocks, learning of Ens' plan when they came here Sunday to meet the Morgan club in a National Challenge cup game, indorsed the move enthusiastically, pronounced it a great idea and expressed the belief that it could not fail to do the Pirates a tremendous amount of good.

THOUGH ADMITTING a [illegible] Shamrocks declared experience had taught them it was to better conditioner than soccer, and they wondered that baseball clubs had not taken it up for that purpose long ago. They predicted it would be such a success in the Picatoon camp that other clubs would follow Pittsburgh's lead.

There is only one danger to be guarded against, one of the veteran soccer stars pointed out, and that is the possibility that some of the Pirates may try to imitate some of the fancy kicking they have seen expert players do, which involves the risk of injuring a fellow athlete. With that detail watched, there is no doubt that the scheme would prove a success, it was agreed.

ASKED TO RATE the leading heavyweight championship contenders, Jack Dempsey ranked them in this order — Stribling, Schmeling, Sharkey and Carnera. He gave Stribling first place on the strength of his knockouts of Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott in the last six months. Schmeling was placed second because he won the title; Sharkey third because of his general ability, and Carnera next because of his immense bulk and the unusual speed he has for a big fellow. Sharkey lacks the stuff to win the title, Dempsey thinks. Jack says the ex-gob becomes discouraged if his opponent doesn't fall as soon as he's hit.

CALIFORNIA'S NEW BOXING commission composed of Dr. Harry Martin, Robert Edgren and Rev. Leslie Kelly, has adopted a revised set of regulations. One of the most important rules prohibits matches in which champions force their opponents to come in weighing above the class limit so that in event of defeat they will not lose their titles. Hereafter no champion will be allowed to box in California against a man in his own class unless he puts his crown at stake and undertakes to defend it.

COMMISSION NOT TO DECLARE TITLES VACANT

Bridgeville Plays Clan Douglas in West Penn Soccer Cup Semi-Final

STATE BODY TO SUSPEND CHAMPIONS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Holding that a championship can be won or lost only in the ring, the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission has announced that in the future it would not declare any titles vacant, but would suspend champions unless they defend their titles at reasonable interval.

"Under this ruling," the commission stated, "Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, is suspended, but until he is defeated in the ring or retires, the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission will recognize him as champion.

"While realizing this is a reversal of its former decision in regard to Mickey Walker, the commission believes it is for the best interest in the sport. The commission takes this position to help lead the way in having all commissions recognize the fact that a championship can be only won or lost in the ring."

Walker's championship recently was declared vacant by the Pennsylvania Commission after he had failed to defend it up to January 1. Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, told the commission the only reason he had not done so was because there were no "logical" opponents in the middleweight division.

The commission's "about face" action was taken at a meeting in Harrisburg on Tuesday.

The commission announced the suspension of Johnny Warner, of Clairton, Pa., and Gene Moretti, of New Jersey boxers. Warner was set down for failure to go through with a bout with Moe Butch at the Moose Temple, Pittsburgh, due to illness. Paul Ballint, of Pittsburgh, and Gus Brittner, of Charleroi, boxers, were reinstated.

BAER TO FIGHT LOUGHRAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Max Baer, of California, latest heavyweight hero of New York fans, and the winner in the now famous episode of the short count, has been matched with Tommy Loughran, former light heavyweight champion, for his third New York appearance. The bout is scheduled for Madison Square Garden, February 6.

MALONEY BATTLE OFF

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The Boston Garden has had to cancel its Jimmy Maloney-Johnny Risko heavyweight bout, scheduled for February 6. Frank Bruen, Miami promoter, warned the Boston battler he was under contract that prohibited him from engaging in any bouts until after his Florida clash with Primo Carnera, on March 5.

DAY, RYERSON PLAY TODAY

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Winfield Day, Jr., Chicago school boy, swept aside Mat. M. R. Smith, Kansas City, Mo., veteran of Army courses, in their quarter-final match of the Glenn Curtis amateur golf trophy tournament yesterday, 3 to 1.

Other favorites also came through their quarter-final matches. Jack Ryerson, Coopers-town, N. Y., had little trouble in disposing of A. P. Lawson, Providence, R. I., 6 and 5.

Lee Chase, Buffalo, nosed out G. C. Kirkland, Miami, 3 and 2, and Jack Vilas, Chicago, eliminated Ken Berry, 8 and 7.

Today's semi-finals will pit Day against Ryerson, and Chase against Vilas.

Elaborate Plans For Flannery Fete

Elaborate preparations are being made for the testimonial dinner to be given J. Rogers Flannery, chairman of the National A. A. U. handball committee and former national junior champion, at the Keystone A. C. at 6:30 p. m. Saturday.

The affair is sponsored by the handball players of the local athletic clubs.

DIVIDENDS KEPT EVEN BY NEW POLICY

1930 Disbursements Fair To Reflect Shrinkage In Corporate Earnings

BY MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.

The predominating dividend philosophy of American corporate management as disclosed since the end of the last period of prosperity has been to keep disbursements to shareholders on an even keel through [illegible].

A [illegible] of withholding [illegible] from [illegible] has been the willingness to accept outstanding gains in earnings in temporary intervals of adverse corporate earnings. Accordingly in 1930 aggregate dividend disbursements did not reflect the shrinkage in corporate earnings.

Mr. Rukeyser

HELPS BUSINESS

In so far as dividends and interest contribute to consumer purchasing power and they are playing an ever increasing role such a dividend policy helps to stabilize business. It is greatly to be commended.

Some companies which are in a strong financial position and which believe they have good long-term prospects would be warranted in times of depression to pay out all their earnings, or even go further and dip into the surplus account. To do this, however, it must, of course, be willing to use peak earnings sparingly in times of prosperity.

When we as a people become economic adults the next step will be to achieve a somewhat similar doctrine as labor. Well-managed [illegible] and the pioneers are already proceeding in this direction, [illegible] in special reserves in good times to take care of long-term [illegible] engineers in times of depression, instead of tossing them on the street and putting them on the mercy of public charity.

WOULD BAN TAX

In order to encourage corporations to set aside unemployment reserves Senator Wagner, who has been the clearest thinker on Capitol Hill about the human aspects of depression, has wisely proposed that such funds be relieved of taxation.

Contending that indications have accumulated in the last 30 days that business recovery is near, James A. Farrell president of the United States Steel Corporation in his Chicago address urged executives to help along the trend by putting in normal inventories in place of existing subnormal stocks of goods on hand.

MARKET DULL BUT STOCKS ADVANCE

Bear Drive on Radio Stops Upswing Only for Short Time; Rails Again in Lead

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(A.P.) The financial markets today reflected the growing feeling in Wall street that the worst of the business depression is over, but the equity share market still manifested a marked disinclination to count its eggs before they are hatched.

Despite the placing of new offerings on the market, aggregating about $75,000,000, listed bonds continued to work higher. Stocks were dull but moved quietly forward. Bear selling of Radio around mid-day caused only momentary hesitation. U. S. Steel and American Telephone slipped off about a point but quickly recovered. Rail shares were again in the forefront of the advance.

Tire Shipments Up 17% for December

Tire shipments for December increased 17 per cent above November and were 3 per cent above December a year ago, according to a special preliminary report compiled by the Rubber Manufacturers' Association.

This increase is counter to the decreases usually experienced in December as compared with November. In 1929 the decrease was 6 per cent.

Chile Leads World Iodine Production

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The Bureau of Mines reports that Chile is the largest producer of iodine, contributing about 90 per cent of the world's total production. It is obtained in that country as a by-product of the important nitrate industry. Caliche, the crude nitrate-bearing earth, contains one-half to one pound of iodine per ton.

Pershing Found French Best Army Cooks; Consults Petain

could be easily surmised from the youthful appearance of the officers, a number of whom had been promoted because of casualties among their seniors, when Petain told me that because of its fine record the division had been given the special honor of assisting in the capture of Montfaucon.

Accompanied by Brig. Gen. Bundy, on a sidetrack and others I took over Petain's headquarters train, being treated in the courteous and ready use of the French telephone system. An aviation field was built in connection with extensive instruction. One pilot insisted on throwing me out immediately after we had risen first instead of waiting until we had reached seven or eight hundred feet, necessary so the explosion would not injure the grenade thrower, I explained.

After he had changed several times in his office on the main line,

"Captain, I just can't hold these grenades any longer because I can feel them swelling in my hand."

We visited several villages occupied by French and American troops. As we passed through the billets and inspected the kitchens Petain particularly inquired about the components of our ration and the manner of cooking and serving meals.

The French soldiers were furnished wine in place of coffee provided for our men, and the allowances differed in other respects, ours containing a larger meat component. But when it came to cooking the French were ahead of us although our men preferred our own to either the French or British ration.

Mistaken Identity

In many cases on our tours with Gen. Petain we had to climb ladders to reach our billets in the hay mows. In one loft I happened to stand apart near a neatly made bunk and in the dim light Gen. Petain mistook me for the sergeant in charge.

He asked me how we liked our billets, and a number of other questions about our life in France which I answered respectfully, playing the part the best I could. He did not know the difference until he was told by some of the amused members of his staff after "Our Sergeant" we had descended.

Motoring to Soulis, the headquarters of the French Second Army, we met Maj. Gen. Favolle, commanding the group of armies of the center and Maj. Gen. Guillaumat, commander of the Second Army, whose chief of staff explained in detail the plan of the battle that was to take place next day.

We had luncheon with Gen. Favolle, whom later I came to regard as one of the ablest of the French generals. In appearance he was rather frail, no longer young, but active and alert.

On our visit to the military hospital at Soulis Gen. Petain decorated Mlle. de Baye, a nurse, with the croix de guerre as she lay on a cot suffering from a severe wound inflicted by a piece of shell two days before. When he told her who I was she said, "I am glad you are here, General, to see how a French woman can suffer for her country." She was so happy, however, that I am sure that for the moment she had entirely forgotten her pain.

The following afternoon I had a most agreeable surprise. Motoring to the command post of the Sixteenth Corps, which conducted this offensive, I found an old friend of Russo-Japanese War days, Maj. Gen. Corvisart, in command.

As viewed from his post the battlefield lay before us like a panorama, and with the sun at our backs we could easily follow the advancing French lines, one particular unit under observation being the famous Foreign Legion in which I had become interested many years before from reading Ouida's tale, "Under Two Flags."

Old Friends Promoted

Being entirely satisfied regarding the outcome of the battle, Corvisart and I dropped into reminiscence of our former service together in Manchuria. We had been military attaches in Japan at the same time, both of us being assigned to Gen. Kuroki's army as observers.

I inquired about Maj. Cavaglia, the Italian attache, and learned that he was then a lieutenant general commanding an army in Northern Italy. We recalled that when we were with the Japanese army Cavaglia used to wake it every morning singing Italian opera. Maj. Bela de Dani, the Austrian, had been advanced to the same rank and position as Cavaglia. Sir Ian Hamilton, of Gallipoli fame, already held the rank of major general when he was observer with the Japanese. Col. Fowke had become lieutenant general and adjutant general of the British force.

And so we ran through the list up to the German attache, Capt. Hoffman had but recently succeeded Ludendorff as chief of staff on the Russian front, and later became a general. I then asked about Maj. von Etzel, the Junior German attache, and it was easy to anticipate the reply as Corvisart, with a smile of satisfaction pointed to the battlefield and said:

"I have just beaten him today. He is commanding a division opposite me."

This attack of the second French army, although made astride the Meuse River, was directed principally against Hill 304, Mort Homme and Hill 304, both famous in the struggle of 1916. To destroy the wire entanglements and demolish trenches, as a precaution against heavy losses, the infantry assault was preceded by four days' continuous bombardment, and relatively the amount of artillery ammunition expended exceeded that of any previous engagement, its value being, as I remember it, some $15,000,000.

The proportion of the artillery force as compared to the infantry in this battle was as 1 to 10.

Point of Interest

The tank attached such precision and volume that the German troops in the forward positions were submerged and the attacking infantry reached most of its objectives by midafternoon the first day, making an advance of five kilometers and capturing 6,000 prisoners.

The sector where the French attack took place was to have a personal interest for me before the end of the war. My headquarters as commander of the First Army one year later, were established in Souilly, then used by Maj. Gen. Guillaumat, and the line reached by Corsica's troops in this battle became our jumping off line in the Meuse - Argonne battle. In fact, every foot of the ground covered in this inspection with Gen. Petain became associated later with America's greatest effort in the war.

Gen. Guillaumat

After visiting the French installations and the manifold activities carried on behind this front, with the shifting masses of combat troops and the thousands engaged in the services of supply and transportation, it seemed quite improbable that we should be able to marshal a sufficient army in time to replace the French on this front before 1919.

I found it most agreeable as well as instructive to be with Petain in this intimate way and have an opportunity to hear something of his experience. His discussion of the defense of Verdun, in which he played an important part, being second in command, was especially entertaining.

As we drove about he spoke of the courage of his troops and of the tremendous losses they had sustained. He pointed out the vast amount of road work including the Voie Sacree from Bar-le-Duc to Verdun, rebuilt under his directions for the constant movements of large bodies of troops and supplies necessary to maintain the defense.

Petain Successful

In lighter vein his comments during this trip on French politicians were amusing if not always complimentary, and he congratulated me many times on being so far removed from political interference.

One afternoon the conversation drifted to painting and he asked me how many times I had sat for my portrait. "Several times already," I said. "The last one, which was very good, was done by a distinguished artist by the name of Jonas, English Jonah," for "Illustration."

Immediately he said: "Don't let them publish it. Don't do it. Every officer whose portrait by Jonas has appeared in that journal has been ordered from his command."

Not that I am superstitious, quite the contrary, but I immediately forsake the publication of the portrait and to this day it has never appeared.

From the time of Nivelle's failure in April the depression in the French armies had been so great that Petain, who succeeded him, had been content simply to hold the trenches and no French offensive operation of consequence had been attempted until this one. From that moment of his assignment Petain began to build up the shattered morale of his armies, and probably no officer in France could have performed the task so well.

Petain's immense success in the defense of Verdun had won for him the confidence of the army and the country, and yet he remained the same modest, unassuming character, consistent and conservative. He, perhaps better than any other, understood the temperament of the French soldier, whom he handled with infinite patience and tact.

A Wise Selection

Petain had visited some 90 divisions and impressed them with his personality and prestige. As his efforts began to bear fruit he concluded to try a limited operation, to be carried out by especially selected units.

The preparations for the attack which we have just witnessed were worked out in minute detail and with the utmost secrecy in order to insure success, its avowed purpose being to stimulate the morale of both the army and the people. Petain himself and the ministers were much pleased with the result.

It is my opinion that, under the circumstances, the selection of Petain to be commander-in-chief of the French armies, which was made by M. Painleve, had as important an effect on the outcome of the war as the appointment of a supreme commander for the allied armies.

Volume of Building Contracts Declines

Contracts awarded for new construction in 37 states east of the Rocky Mountains from January 1 through January 16 totaled $122,086,700, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. This was at the rate of $9,390,800 per business day, compared with $9,593,600 in December, and $12,460,600 per business day in January, 1930.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS
Market's Short Interest Uncomfortable During Dull Trading Days.

The market is nursing a sizeable short interest, it is believed, which cannot feel very comfortable during these "million share days." Efforts to shake the market out of its rut this week failed so completely that there is little doubt that liquidation has dried up. Auburn automobile is one example of what can happen to the shorts in this market. This stock is quickly responsive to concentrated buying. It advanced 5½ points on Tuesday and about 4 points yesterday on a small turnover. A really serious blow to the shorts cannot be struck, however, until the public shows more interest in the low prices now ruling for securities.

Strength in the railroad shares was encouraging yesterday, particularly as car loadings show less than the usual seasonal increase and earnings reports are poor. Atchison was the leader and Erie was strong. Good buying has been seen in the railroad group since the turn of the year and the substantial gains made following the publication of the Eastern merger plan have been held. The notable strength in the rails led to a revival of the rumor that a more liberal policy toward valuations will shortly be adopted by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The rails day by day are attracting a considerable speculative following. The proposed trunk line mergers in the Eastern territory have also attracted attention to the shares of companies engaged in manufacturing railroad equipment.

Current signs point to accumulation of stocks, in the opinion of three out of every four of Wall street experts. This is not to say there will be no further reactions in the market, but it does mean the normal pace will be one of dull and featureless sessions, with the active stocks being churned around monotonously. While this process is going on, important developments, mostly favorable, are taking place in industry and business. When accumulation has been completed, or nearly so, a surprising improvement will have been noted in strategic sections of industry. During accumulation unfavorable news and developments of all kinds are "given the play," while favorable factors of all kinds are soft-pedaled. That is why we hear so much of real bear market propaganda simultaneously with repetition of confident statements and forecasts of such recognized industrial leaders as James Farrell, of the Steel Corporation; Alfred Sloan, of General Motors, whose opinions are worth a thousand times as much as the uninformed market gossips.

The amount of cash per share held in the treasuries of a number of industrial companies is of interest since it gives some idea of how long these companies may maintain current dividends, even though business improvement be further delayed. Included in this group are American Chicle, which has in cash the equivalent of $2.27 per share; Beechnut Packing, $3.72 per share; Borg-Warner, $6.28; Burroughs Adding Machine, $3.82; Chrysler, $10.52; General Motors, $4.64; General Refractories, $2.21; Goodyear Tire, $11.72; Goodrich, $15.56; International Nickel, $1.08; International Shoe, $5.75; Mack Truck, $2.78; McKesson and Robbins, $3.24; Nash Motors, $13.95; National Supply, $16.93; Remington Rand, $6.00; Standard Oil of California, $1.50; Stewart-Warner, $3.70; United States Steel, $24.99; Worthington Pump, $54.50, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube, $9.30.

Selling which caused the decline in Gillette Safety Razor early this week was said to have been for pool account. However, two interpretations are placed on the operation. One is that the group which was supposed to start a demonstration against a short position in the stock had been compelled to liquidate its long position because of market conditions. The second version is that this pool had supplied the stock to encourage additional short selling and put the stock in a stronger position when the group is ready to start its work.

E. H. Krom, president, G. R. Kinney Company, stated that preliminary earnings of $307,000 after charges and taxes for the last six months of 1930 more than covered the preferred and common dividends for the period. "Inventories have been reduced during the year by $1,700,000, or 23 per cent," he stated. "Notes and accounts payable as of December 31, 1930, amounted to $1,459,426, a reduction of $834,645, or 36 per cent. Ratio of current assets to current liabilities is 4.15 to 1, against 3.28 to 1 on December 31, 1929."

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows these changes in pounds: Total reserve increased 1,193,000; circulation decreased 3,481,000; bullion decreased 2,288,000; other securities increased 3,611,000; public deposits decreased 3,000; other deposits increased 4,078,000; notes reserve increased 1,158,000; government securities decreased 2,780,000.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 45.29 per cent, compared with 45.82 a week ago.

Rate of discount 5 per cent.

Courage in Seeking New Sales Gets Results

By GEORGE B. SNYDER.

WAYS TO ECONOMIZE have occupied a large portion of the time of most executives during the past year. In general the measures taken to reduce expenses have had a beneficial effect on industry. The elimination of unproductive costs has undoubtedly placed business in a better position to show satisfactory profits.

In periods of prosperity most industrial organizations have a tendency to disregard expenses. Times of declining profits force executives to make a careful examination of every department and of the manner in which funds are being used. Occasional times of depression are necessary to bring the costs of all departments into line with their actual performances.

The events of the past year are bringing to light the fact that there are some departments in which economies are helpful while there are others in which curtailed expenditures are harmful.

New Products Help

EXAMINATION OF THE results of companies which have best withstood the unfavorable conditions of the past year shows that they may be divided into two classes. One group of organizations has maintained earnings at a high level because it has been favored by exceptional conditions beyond the control of management. The other group has kept sales and profits at a high level by introducing new products or as a result of definite policies.

While many organizations may continue to show the effects of the business depression during most of the present year, there are a few companies which are going aggressively after new business and are attempting to compensate for dull markets by the development of new sources of revenue. These companies are boldly putting new products on the market and they are showing confidence in these products by increasing their appropriations for advertising.

Intelligent Economies

THE COMPANIES WHICH are continuing their development regardless of the depression have followed the general policy of cutting unnecessary expenditures but they have not restricted appropriations in departments responsible for perfecting new products or for getting new business.

Several companies are beginning to show the benefits of the application of such a policy to their operations. At the automobile shows in New York and Pittsburgh the exhibits of a single manufacturer have monopolized public attention. This organization has pioneered a new engineering development which may have a far reaching effect on the industry. The same manufacturer has announced plans for increased advertising and more intensive sales efforts while other motor car builders have been working along more timid lines. Judging from the crowds around the exhibits of this company, it will lead gains in sales for the present year.

A company making an entirely different product, made famous by two radio comedians, has also put a new line on the market. Undoubtedly this step will prove a wise one.

When to Expand

SEVERAL YEARS AGO an official of a large manufacturing company in the Chicago district gave the writer a valuable light on the proper time for industry to expand. He was discussing an addition to the plant which had just been completed but which was not being used. He said:

"We always seem to build at the wrong time. Our business slumped just about the time we finished that new building. So far we haven't used it. Our last three plant additions were started when sales were booming. The additions were finished when business was slumping. Industry needs men with the foresight to refrain from building new plants when everyone is making money and sales are making daily gains and the courage to build plants when sales have slumped and profits are small."

Security Representatives

This advertisement is addressed to men who, though not looking for a "job," would be interested in a connection with a large securities organization which will be pleasant, profitable and permanent.

Write fully about yourself and in confidence. Previous experience is not necessary for men of ability, character and ambition.

ADDRESS C-60, SUN-TELEGRAPH

SCHOOL DISTRICT OF PITTSBURGH
4.25% GOLD BONDS
Tax Exempt in Pennsylvania

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received by H. W. Crambilet, Secretary, in the office of The Board of Public Education, 231 Administration Building, Forbes Street at Bellefield Avenue, Pittsburgh, until 3 o'clock P. M. Tuesday, February 17th, 1931, for Three Million ($3,000,000) Dollars school loan on conditions as follows:

THREE MILLION DOLLARS ($3,000,000) SCHOOL LOAN

for the purpose of raising the necessary funds for procuring sites and erecting and equipping buildings and additions for elementary and high schools of the School District under the provisions of an Act of Assembly entitled "An Act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, etc.," approved May 18, 1911, P. L. 309, authorized by resolution of The Board of Public Education of the School District of Pittsburgh adopted January 29, 1921.

The bonds are serial with maturities beginning on the first days of February, 1932, and annually thereafter, until and including February 1, 1961, one hundred bonds maturing each year.

Bonds will be in denominations of $1,000 in coupon form, which may be registered as to principal only, and are payable, principal and interest, in gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness.

The principal sum will bear interest at the rate of four and one-quarter per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of February and August, the first payment of interest to be on the first day of August, 1931, and both principal and interest are payable free from all taxes in Pennsylvania.

PROPOSALS MUST BE UNCONDITIONAL AND FOR THE ENTIRE ISSUE AND MUST BE MADE UPON THE PRESCRIBED FORM OF BLANKS, TO BE OBTAINED AT THE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY.

No bid will be considered unless accompanied by a certified check drawn to the order of the Treasurer of the School District of Pittsburgh for two per centum of the par value of the bonds.

Checks accompanying bids not accepted will be returned to the bidders promptly. Checks of successful bidders will be held until the last of the bonds to be by the depositor has been taken and paid for. No interest allowed on check after acceptance of bid and thereafter interest will be allowed thereon at four per cent (4%) per annum.

Settlement in full for the loan awarded must be made with the School Treasurer, Peter Mayer, in lots as follows: $1,000,000 on or before March 16, 1931, with accrued interest from February 1, 1931, to day of settlement; balance as directed.

The Board of Public Education reserves the right to reject any or all proposals.

The proceedings for this loan and the legality of the issue have been approved by J. Rodgers McCreery, Esq., and Burgwin, Scully & Burgwin, Esqs., of Pittsburgh, and a copy of their letters attesting legality may be had on application.

In Memoriam 1-B

IN loving memory of our dear daughter, Anna Wiegand, who passed away one year ago today, January 22, 1930.

Sweet was our darling daughter's life,
Peaceful was her death,
Jesus called and she obeyed,
And left us here to weep
For from the world of sin and strife,
Safe within the arms of Jesus, there to have eternal life.

Sadly missed by father, mother, sister and brothers.

Connie's Mother Becomes Ill After Robberies

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Connie Calvert shares her home and fortune with her half-sister, Kitty, whom she found destitute in New York's underworld. Kitty falls in love with Jim Tracy, Connie's former fiance. Believing Jim to be a fortune-hunter, Connie, to save Kitty, enlists the aid of Duke Garson, Kitty's friend and underworld intelligence man. He warns Connie that her butler is a crook and that her mother should guard her pearls. Later, Duke is about to declare his love for Connie when Jim appears. He claims he was held up and is afraid to go home. Connie invites him to stay. Duke doubts Jim's story. That night, Mrs. Calvert's pearls are stolen. Duke questions the maid about them. The maid doubts Kitty's honesty.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

Connie involuntarily made a quick comparison of Jim Tracy with Duke Garson as the men stood together in the room. Yet there was no comparison—Duke Garson was definitely superior. Whatever his inner qualities might be, he he revealed on the surface a steadfast poise, an instinctive self adjustment to all circumstances. He was, measured by any standard, exceptional. By any matter, it was not remarkable she realized, that he commanded respect among the vicious inhabitants of the underworld from which he had come at her behest. She could imagine him "equal" as well there as here.

"If Jim wants to stick, I'm sure I don't know what any of us can do about it except Jim himself," Mrs. Calvert said with aloof philosophy. "Men before now have been known to drink too much for their good. The subject of the little discussion we were having was about my pearls. I don't think you two have been informed as yet that my necklace was stolen last night from my room."

Pan Surprised

"You don't mean it!" Kitty cried, her voice startled.

Jim Tracy battled his astonishment. "Oh, Mrs. Calvert, I said.

Connie noted that Duke Garson was observing both of them closely; she wondered if he suspected either of them, but it was impossible to judge what was passing in his mind by the expression of his face.

"But who—who?" Kitty spoke and then looked helplessly at Garson. "Are we going to have the police come out here? Who do you think got them, Duke?"

"I don't know. Perhaps Mr. Tracy can suggest a clue for us to work on."

Tracy looked at him quickly with a flash of belligerence. "How should I know? I'm not a detective. As a rough guess though, I should say it was the work of some professional crook. Maybe Hagins, the butler, is a crook, Mrs. Calvert. Had you thought of that?"

"I hardly," Mrs. Calvert replied, and I shan't. I shouldn't know what to do about it. It's the most ghastly feeling imaginable to realize that some criminal has been prowling through the house. I suppose we should notify the police, but Mr. Garson seems to have a great deal of faith in them."

"No, don't get the police," Kitty said vigorously. "They're rotten fathead—they'd probably want to arrest one of us. It would be just by luck to have them pick on me."

"No, these small town police on here are no good," Tracy asserted. "I know a chap that has a detective agency down in Wall street. If you like, I could get him to send up a man."

"I'd rather leave it to Duke if you'd ask me," Kitty declared. "He knows crooks and crimes inside and out. You know how he's work don't you, Duke? You remember that mob that used to pull off some of that stuff out on Long Island?"

Garson smiled.

Duke Puzzled

"I've known several hundred crooks of all kinds," he said unruffled, "and the hardest of them to figure is the amateur."

"What do you mean by that?" Tracy asked him intently.

"Just what I said," Garson replied. "For instance, when you came back with the story of being held up last night I confessed it was all very puzzling. I got the feel there was the mark of the amateur all over the whole episode."

"Was Jim held up?" Mrs. Calvert demanded in astonishment.

"Yes, but they decided not to tell you about it," Kitty said. "Two men stopped him on the road going home and took his wallet. Maybe the same two broke in the house and stole your pearls."

Mrs. Calvert's lids fluttered for a moment and she drew a long, distressed breath. "My goodness, this is getting too much for me! I've lived all my life without anything like this happening before, and I don't know what to say or do."

Connie's eyes grew misty with concern for her mother. "I think, dear, you mustn't let all this get on your nerves and upset you. You've been under a heavy strain already and all the pearls on earth aren't worth it if they throw you into a breakdown."

"That's right, Mrs. Calvert," Kitty put in. "It isn't as though a few thousand dollars meant anything much to you one way or the other. You can well afford the loss, and I wouldn't worry."

"That's a sensible way of looking at it," Jim Tracy added. "If those two men that held me up got into the house there'd be no tracing them. If you have some insurance on the pearls, you can collect, all right, so you'll get back at least part of their value. Maybe it would be best to notify the insurance company and let it go at that."

"And we'll all be investigated to death," Kitty said, unhappily.

Mrs. Calvert Upset

Mrs. Calvert shook her head and turned to Connie. "What shall I do, dear? It's too much for me, and I shall have to rely on your decision. The whole thing is so distressing that I can hardly bear to think about it. Whatever you desire to do, Connie, dear, will be all right with me. I do dread any newspaper notoriety about our family though. Poor Kitty, here—"

"Yes, I am the blot on the family record," Kitty said, with a queer grimness. "It wouldn't look nice in the papers that the respectable Mr. Calvert ditched his first wife and baby down on Tenth avenue."

Suddenly Mrs. Calvert lost color and began to tremble.

"Oh, I'm so sorry, so sorry," Kitty cried. "I didn't mean to hurt you, Mrs. Calvert. I was just talking of myself."

Mrs. Calvert got up from her chair and moved toward the door.

"I'm going to my room," she said, in a tremulous voice.

Connie followed her, before she reached the door Duke Garson stepped to her side and said, in a low voice, "Come back soon as you can. We'll all wait here for you."

Connie nodded.

"If you'll excuse me," Jim Tracey said. "I'll get in my car and run over home for a while. I want a change of clothes. I'll be back presently."

Garson stared at him with dark, commanding eyes. "I don't think you had better go just yet, Mr. Tracey. We'll all stay right here until Connie returns."

Pattern 2089
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Loveliness is expressed in every line and fold of this frock for the junior miss. The gracefully flared collar is becomingly divided in back and in front. The skirt flares add youth and freedom with every move of the wearer. A bit of colored ribbon is used in place of the more formal belt. Sleeves are included in the pattern.

Pattern 2089 will make up successfully in georgette, chiffon, organdy, lace, net, voile or silk crepe. White or a pastel shade will be lovely. The edges of these fabrics are easily finished by picoting or binding with self material.

May be ordered only in sizes 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 10 requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

DAILY TRUE STORY — Let's Get Married

Archie Trevor tore from the magazine the page in colors advertising the well-known Sparrow Collars.

The picture was by a prominent artist who had the knack of drawing young men to look like Adonis in modern raiment—and this particular likeness of a modern Apollo was surely the answer to any maiden's prayer, or would be if ever such a young man should appear in the flesh.

Archie propped the illustration against the mirror and examined it.

He was wearing a Sparrow collar like that illustrated.

Archie dampened his military brushes in a pinkish "goo" and brushed his hair so that it looked quite like the hair in the illustration.

He twisted his head to get a better view of his own features and at the same time to compare them with the idealized features in the collar advertisement drawing.

Hair—forehead—straight nose—eyes—

One by one he went over the features in the drawing and his own features as an accountant would work out a recapitulation.

The chin, now. Not quite so clean-cut and marble-solid as the chin the artist had drawn, yet not a bad chin. Even to the little cleft in it.

Archie nodded.

He was well satisfied.

Girls always looked at him, especially very young girls who were silly, and very old girls—who were sillier.

Archie fastened his gaiters and again brushed his hair, lest stooping over had disarranged a wisp of it.

He was three minutes putting his hat on at just the correct angle. He saw that the handkerchief in his coat pocket showed just a hint of the monogram, and that his gloved left hand held the right hand glove properly.

Picking up his cane he left his quarters, hoping that the agent wouldn't be loitering around.

Archie was considerably in arrears with his rent.

Meets Sam Welles

More than that, Archie's funds were running low. He could, of course, go to Newark and work for his uncle in the paint factory office. The thought of this always made Archie shudder.

He emerged from the apartment without meeting the agent, thereby saving him the exertion of more excuses.

Sam Welles was just coming in.

Sam and Archie had been acquainted for some time. Archie felt sorry for Sam. In the first place, Sam worked for an architect, not that it mattered where he worked—Sam worked, and that was sad enough, a terrible fate in Archie's estimation. But Sam did not look like a Sparrow collar advertisement. Not by the greatest stretch of imagination could Sam be made to look like a modern Adonis or Apollo. Sam was extremely tall and rather thin. His thick brown hair would never stay put, and he had a rather long overdone Grecian nose with freckles on it.

Yes sir, Archie felt sorry for Sam.

"Hello, Arch—going to give the girls a treat?" Sam asked when he saw Archie.

Archie shrugged and tried to appear deeply concerned.

"It's tough to keep my dates straight, Sam—so many invitations pouring in. I'm running up to the Poplars."

"Yeah? Swell folks, the Maysons—and Wanda is a corker."

"It goes without saying," Archie agreed.

He toddled off and Sam went up to his rooms for some papers he had forgotten.

Archie hurried down to the big garage where he kept his car.

Smith mentioned something about last month's garage rent.

"Jove!" Archie said. "Dumb of me to forget. I'm off on a date, late now. I have to stop at the bank first—remind me when I drive in tonight."

Arrives at Mayson's

"I will," Smith assured him.

Archie sighed with relief. Some day, and before long, Smith wouldn't let him take his car out unless he settled. More than that, he thought, as he drove cautiously, he had to try and find a new tailor. He couldn't stand Snip & Snip off for any more raiment.

Out of the traffic, headed up Westchester way, Archie felt better.

He was figuring things out.

Now take Wanda Mayson—and he intended to take her—she was tall and solid and knew and talked a lot about art. Good looking, in an Amazonian sort of way. More than that, Wanda had an immense fortune all her own. Her people were in both books, they were quite all right socially and financially. And if Archie married Wanda they would travel and play and loaf and entertain—on the Mayson money.

Archie knew just how he would shine, socially, with plenty of money.

And Wanda was fond of him, very fond of him.

He drove in through the wide entrance to the Poplars and up to the big mansion. A servant opened his car door and took the car around to the ten-car garage.

Archie went up the terrace steps.

"Hello handsome—here we are!"

It was Wanda calling to him.

After dinner Wanda and Archie played billiards. He was good at that. Then a few hands of honeymoon bridge—he wasn't so good at this.

"Can't miss this moon," Wanda said.

They went down the wide path through the boxwood hedge to the lily pool.

The moon was reflected in the gazing ball and in the pool.

They sat on the marble bench, imported from Milano, and talked.

"Archie," Wanda said, suddenly, "you are amazing, you add to the beauty of any scene—you are one darling boy!"

"And you are one darling girl—the only darling girl," Archie retorted. He held her hand. He recalled of reading that women were more susceptible in moonlight.

"Wanda," he said finally, "let's get married?"

"What's that, Archie?"

"Dear girl, let's get married," he repeated.

"Dear boy, you're on—shake!" They shook hands.

"Then it's yes?"

"Certainly, Archie."

"You've made me so happy," he said, with a sigh of relief.

He kissed her fondly, soon after this, and drove back to the city.

Nothing bothered him now.

At the garage Smith was there and reminded him of the garage rent.

"Forget all about it—spent what spare change I had celebrating—you see this is a secret yet, but I'm going to marry Miss Mayson."

"Commodore Mayson's daughter?"

"Absolutely—none other."

"I congratulate you," Smith said, "and let the rent run . . it's quite all right."

Archie went boldly into the shop of Snip & Snip next day and ordered half a dozen suits of clothes. They received him coldly, but after he had explained that he was to marry Miss Mayson, daughter of the commodore, their coldness melted.

Everything was lovely now.

Archie Shocked

Archie telephoned up next day, but Wanda had gone to town.

Archie wanted to suggest that their engagement be announced.

He telephoned later and learned that Wanda was still in the city, a dinner engagement.

The next morning Archie found a big square envelope with his mail.

He read it and nearly fainted. Frantically he rushed to his telephone and finally got Wanda.

"Dearest—what's all this horrible mistake—the announcement of your engagement to Sam Welles?" he asked.

"Why, handsome boy, it's true," she said.

"But—but you're engaged to me—you promised to marry me, Wanda!"

"How silly! What gave you that idea? You said to me, 'Let's get married,' and I agreed because, you see, I was secretly engaged to Sam then . . . Sure, we'll get married, Archie; I'll marry Sam. Who will you marry?"

Archie was so long trying to get his breath and find a good answer that Wanda hung up. She thought he had left the 'phone.

There's No Use Beating Around Bush!

(From the Sawyer County (Wis.) Gazette)

"There has been brought up for attention the matter of closing the deer season, and at the time these brief remarks are written, there are several instances during the past week that mention of this question has been submitted in conversation to the writer. Some expressed views they had, others did not.

"As the writer thinks of the subject we believe it advisable that for the common good interests of the entire section it is a wise way to give the question much consideration before coming to any conclusion.

"This provides ample time to give the subject much thought and carefully weigh the points both pro and con. Taking an unbiased stand in the matter, there are several ways that the writer would sanction action that would bring to an end, at least temporarily, the deer season, but on the other hand, there are certain features which can not be discountenanced and therefore make it appear logically that the season should be carried on in the same manner that it has for the past several seasons.

"No hurried action is necessary, and if such should be taken it might be regretted in various ways. We therefore say, consider it diligently, else something might be done which will not be to the best interests of this territory as well as all Sawyer County."

An Appropriate Name

Expatriate New York Newspapers Object to Making New Bridge a Memorial to George Washington.

Over the Hudson River one of the great bridges of the world is under construction.

It will be completed and dedicated to the public service in 1932.

That is the year in which the government and people of the United States will celebrate the two-hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

On this account the port authorities of the state of New York and the state of New Jersey, by the votes of the 12 commissioners representing both states, has decided to name this giant structure the George Washington Memorial Bridge.

No more appropriate name could have been selected for this new bridge. The representatives of New York and New Jersey responsible for this decision deserve the thanks and congratulation of the public.

To add greatness to the name or luster to the fame of Washington is beyond the power of mortal man.

By tributes to his memory and monuments in his honor, mortal men honor themselves.

The only objections to making this new bridge over the Hudson a memorial to the Father of His Country have come from three expatriate newspapers in the city of New York—the World, the Herald-Tribune and the Post.

These newspapers seek to hide their real reasons under a barrage of petty excuses.

The New York World pretends that if the new bridge is named after the Father of His Country "the official name will become something that can be found in the World Almanac and nowhere else."

As a matter of fact, the World Almanac, as now edited, is the last place in which new evidence of the enduring fame of Washington would be found.

Since 1922 this un-American almanac has even SUPPRESSED THE FAREWELL ADDRESS OF WASHINGTON.

In earlier issues this historic document always appeared alongside of the Declaration of Independence and the federal Constitution.

Now the space which this anti-American almanac formerly gave to the advice and counsel and warnings of Washington is given to THE FULMINATIONS OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS AND TO FABRICATIONS ABOUT THE LEAGUE COURT.

Naturally this is so because the New York World, aided and abetted by the New York Herald-Tribune and the New York Evening Post, is doing its best or rather worst to entangle the United States in the League of Nations and the League Court and in all the political quarrels of the old world AGAINST WHICH WASHINGTON COUNSELED, ADVISED AND WARNED.

The real reason that these nominally American but really foreign newspapers oppose the building of another memorial to Washington is because he wisely and repeatedly advised this country to mind its own business and keep free from foreign entanglements.

The real reason that these expatriate journals sneer at the name and fame of Washington and jeer at his advice is because they are striving to please the international bankers by joining them in putting the interests of foreign nations above the welfare of their own, and allegiance to a super-government at Geneva above allegiance to the United States.

It is not surprising that such newspapers should oppose the naming of the new bridge across the Hudson in honor of the good and great American who always put the interest of his own country first.

It will be more than surprising, however—it will be a scandal and disgrace to the states of New York and New Jersey if the slightest attention is paid to the editorial sniping of the three New York newspapers which seem to resent the fact that he who was "first in war" and "first in peace" is still "first in the hearts of his countrymen."

The George Washington Memorial Bridge has been well named.

Patriotic American citizens of New York and New Jersey will honor themselves, and inspire their children and their children's children to observe the precepts of Washington and imitate his example, by refusing to permit the unanimous decision of their representatives to be revoked.

An Erroneous Belief

Pittsburgh Is Not as Black as It Is Painted by a California Newspaper.

The Sun-Telegraph has been asked to comment on a cartoon published last week in the Los Angeles Times. The cartoon shows the air filled with smoke from a smudge pot. A sooty figure labeled "Former Pittsburgher" remarks with a happy smile, "This is the first time I've felt at home since I've been out here." The cartoon is entitled "We Try to Make Everybody Feel at Home!"

The sunshine of yesterday, which attracted little attention because bright days are not a rarity in Pittsburgh, answered the cartoon.

As a matter of fact Pittsburgh has more bright days than many other American cities. Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman says he can prove that we have less smoke and fog, and have better visibility for aviation purposes, than New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati or Indianapolis.

Of course we have foggy, smoky days now and then. There was occasion to refer to such a day recently in the story of the difficulty encountered by Capt. Jack Morris, the aviator, when he ran into heavy murk. He was unable to get his bearings until he saw the name "Crafton" erected on a roof of that borough by Frank R. Kirk Post of the American Legion. But every community has such a day occasionally, even Los Angeles.

Pittsburgh does not deserve to be singled out as the "Smoky City."

HAECKEL, SCIENCE POPULARIZER

By Archibald Henderson

The theories of Darwin and the doctrine of evolution have produced many champions. None exceeded Ernst Haeckel, the German zoologist, in dogmatism of statement, vigor in expression and wide-ranging if unsound generalization. Haeckel laid down certain biological principles, and used every device of argument illustration and dialetic to demonstrate their universal application and incidence.

The great success of his scientific work, couched in popular form, stimulated his tendency to broad generalization. As he proceeded by almost imperceptible gradations from soundly-based science to untrustworthy philosophising only the expert zoologist could determine where science ends and speculation begins.

Ernst Heinrich Haeckel was born at Potsdam, Germany, February 16, 1834. He enjoyed an exceptionally thorough preparation for his life work. At Berlin and Wurzburg he studied under Johann Mueller and Rudolf Virchow.

He attained the professional rank at the University of Jena at the age of 28. For 47 years he held this post, retiring in 1909. He died August 9, 1919.

Haeckel came to his post at a significant moment in the history of zoology and of science in general, just after Darwin's Origin of Species had been published.

He eagerly embraced the Darwinian theories and became an ardent advocate of the idea of organic evolution. With a facile pen he expressed himself frequently and fully upon the revolutionary new ideas. He became the leading champion of Darwin in Germany, and in the course of time he became world-famous.

At the age of 32 he published his General Morphology, and two years later the History of Creation. Of these two books, which attracted wide attention, Merz says that they deserve to have assigned to them a prominent place in the history of the scientific thought of the age.

Darwin himself recognized the value of Haeckel's service to the cause of the theory of organic evolution, in the words: Prof. Haeckel has made a great beginning, and shows us how classification will in the future be treated.

Huxley, himself an eloquent champion of the Darwinian theories and a past master in the popularization of biological science, expressed himself as follows: "Whatever hesitation may not infrequently be felt by less daring minds in following Haeckel in many of his speculations, his attempt to systematize the doctrine of evolution, and to exhibit its influence as the central thought of modern biology, cannot fail to have a far-reaching influence on the progress of science."

Haeckel's central thesis was the law of biogenesis. It asserted that the history of each individual is a recapitulation of the history of the race. He followed both Lamarck and Darwin greatly to the enrichment of his contribution. His Riddle of the Universe enjoyed immense sales. Untrustworthy as a philosopher, Haeckel was a superb popularizer of science."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

A ridge against the sky—
A girl upon the ridge—

Tumbled hair and wind-blown skirt, molded in flying folds against the slender form. Bright young face laughing, eager, in the fading light. Strong young hands clutching a driver. At her feet, a little ball.

Below, shadows come and go over the meadow. People stoop and rise and walk through the mingled sunlight and shade. It is growing dark and the light is confusing. Somewhere on that meadow—somewhere in that tangled darkness—there is a small ball. She must drive that ball into that small hole. It will not be easy, for she cannot see straight and there are many obstacles in the way. And there's a record to make. So much seems to depend on that stroke!

But she does not hesitate. Facing the shadows facing the obstacles, she clutches her driver tighter, whirls to position, cries "Fore!" Hearing her, the people fall back. Even the shadows seem to make way for that confident young cry. They part, and through a lane of light her strong stroke sends the ball straight toward its mark.

"Fore!" . . . there's a slogan for you, facing the New Year. You, too, stand on a ridge—alone. Before you lies the course, a strange and shadowed course you've never played before. There are obstacles in that course. People in your way. Things in your way. Darkness tangling with the light. Yet, you cannot let those obstacles stop you . . . you must drive ahead through it all—

Standing there on the ridge . . . standing, lonely, as all souls must stand when they plot their own destiny, you hesitate—wonder—

Don't hesitate! Don't wonder!

Cry "Fore!" . . . and drive ahead!

Cry "Fore!" so that the world, on hearing, parts to let you pass. And it will let you pass, if there is courage and confidence and friendly determination in your cry.

You may be poor. You may be obscure. You may be crippled by some grief or scarred by some shame. It does not matter.

Lift up your head and face the course!

Lift up your head and dare the shadows!

Take hold of your will with your two strong hands!

Take hold of your life with your brain and your heart!

Then, facing the darkness, strike straight and sure—

Cry "fore!" . . . and drive toward the mark!

And nothing on earth can hold you back.

For there's only one obstacle that can stand in your way. You, yourself, are your only important handicap. Your own fear, your own laziness and conceit—they alone can keep you from the mark. Those other things that lie ahead, confusing your aim, are only shadows. They cannot hinder you, if you will rout them with your courage. Face them with a steady mind, with an eager heart—

Cry "fore!" . . . and drive . . . and the game is yours!

Change

One thing is certain only,
Though many count it strange,
Though it be gay or lonely,
Each life is sure of change.

If heir to realms of sorrow
Through this day's lagging hours,
The magic of tomorrow
Will bring desired dowers.

Each heart weighed down with yearning
On some bright dawn will find
The wheel of change keeps turning,
Old ways are left behind.

Though stranger now to laughter
And alien to hope,
Brave souls will clasp hereafter
The joys for which they grope.

The world is ever learning
That nothing long endures;
The wheel of change keeps turning
And every longing cures.

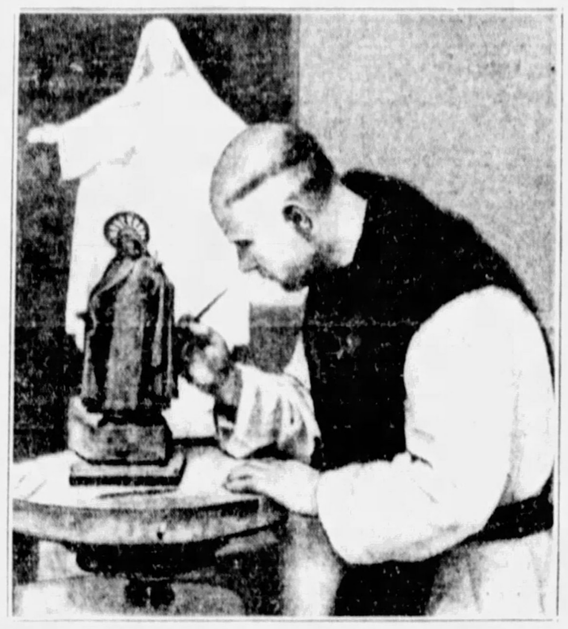
Text for Today

Wherefore he is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them.—Hebrews, vii:25.

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. D. C. Burnite, pastor, First English Lutheran Church, Sharpsburg.

No Substitute for Devotion

True Genius Is the Genius of SINCERITY.



AT WORK IN A BENEDICTINE MONASTERY.

This picture shows a monk of the Benedictine monastery on the Island of Lerin, at work on a small statue of St. Theresa.

It is a picture interesting to those that admire antique works of art and marvel at their earnest sincerity.

Old pictures and statues are beautiful because they were SINCERE, and they were sincere because those that made them worked in full and complete faith and devotion.

For SINCERITY, in any kind of work, ancient or modern, there is NO SUBSTITUTE. Many a painter and sculptor of old worked on a religious subject, with tears on his cheeks, feeling intensely the suffering and the holiness that he portrayed.

The modern artist works without tears. He paints his Madonna, thinking more of himself and his technique than of that which he portrays.

The most magnificent building in the world, Saint Peter's, at Rome, was designed and built by Michelangelo, who wrote to the Pope under whose orders the work was done: "Your Holiness knows that unless it shall benefit my soul, this work is of no profit to me."

He had been complaining of unsatisfactory materials supplied by contractors. Such things happened even in those days.

Michelangelo was not interested in money, but was interested, profoundly, in producing a great work of art. Unfortunately for the world, he was sent for a long period, to develop marble quarries, work that could have been done by any engineer, and thus much of his time was wasted. However, he stands far above all the other artists ever born on earth.

In his Statue of Moses he created such a super-man as Nietzsche never could imagine.

And his women painted in the Sistine Chapel are such as the human race may strive vainly to produce for a thousand centuries to come.

The lesson of this picture is that to be successful you must be sincere, or as Dante said, "As nature works, in fire."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, an. 22.—Few spots in midtown offer such metropolitan worldliness, sophistication and general wise cracking as the various automats. They supplant the speakeasy back room, the chop house and Broadway curb as the White Way plinth to patter—the open forum for wags!

To the marble topped tables come the jobless actor, the song writer, the tout, the bookmaker, the grifter and the sundry variety of easy money scamps whose orbit lies between The Circle and old Herald Square. For 15 cents they have a cup of coffee, a sandwich and watch the world roll by.

In more fortunate days many sneaked into the mechanical restaurants, but today they breeze in openly and unashamed. The economic crisis was a great leveler. Everybody almost, living in the fair weather life of the Tenderloin, is on the rocks.

The sure thing gamblers who spread themselves in the East 50 hush bazars featuring champagne and caviar are now thumb-punching for ham and beans. They not only drop into automats themselves but escort their fine-feathered ladies there.

The automat has a lively clattery-bang and touch-and-go akin to that of the large railroad terminal. To the novitiate it is ever stimulating with informality. At the next table some new and flaming Chitterlow may garland a phrase that will illuminate a Peter Arno sketch next week.

One sees the chorus girl dabbing powder and rouge between hurried bites. The visiting schoolmarm, the gigolo, the gum-chewing flapper, the character players, mannikins, bootleggers, ten cents-a-dance girl and others of the conglomerate crowd seen nowhere but in New York.

Four in the afternoon is the Broadway professional breakfast hour and automats surge with town types. But perhaps the most interesting time is after the theater. From then on until dawn streaks the sky they clot at tables and "dish the dirt."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Several years ago in the old home town you had a friend who left for a big city.

He made good and holds a responsible position.

You called on him recently, approached him in a hail-fellow-well-met manner as vigorous as you once did back home.

He did not respond as enthusiastically as you expected.

He was more sedate, more self-controlled, not inclined to like your manners.

You thought him "high-hat" and were hurt at your cold reception.

Your visit to the city was marred by the fact that you found this friend of your boyhood days apparently a different sort of person.

Perhaps if you had met him under other circumstances and not among his business or office associates you might not have noticed a change in him.

If he occupies a position of authority or responsibility he must preserve the dignity which it requires.

The rules of his department or establishment may be such that loud talking and hilarity are not permitted.

Your violation of rules might have annoyed him.

Back in the old home town he might have enjoyed the greeting you gave him.
